FORD STRIKE RIOTING CONTINUES

Hunter Appoints Four to New 'City Cabinet'

PICKS STYERT FOR SERVICE, SAFETY CHIEF

Former Council President to Succeed Wolfe; Herlihy To Head Waterworks.

NAME LINGAFELTER, RAHM

Mayor-Elect to Announce 3 Other Major Appointments To City Jobs Next Week.

Mayor-elect Claude M. Hunter today announced four of his seven major appointments to city posts.

He named:

TRACY C. STYERT a service safety director.

JAMES M. HERLIHY as waterworks superintendent.

FRED E. LINGAFELTER as water department secretary.

JACOB RAHM as parks superintendent.

Three other major appointments are still to be announced, and Hunter said he would make public his selections next week. He has yet to name a street superintendent, garbage department superintendent and a sewage disposal plant superintendent.

All 4 Served Under Lantz.

All four of the appointees named today held city positions under former Mayor Charles M. Lantz, who left office Dec. 31, 1935, and three of the four—Styert, Herlihy and Rahm—were all considered to have the "inside track" for the jobs to which they were appointed in informed Democratic circles. Lingafelter's name was not so prominently mentioned in conjecture on the new mayor's appointments.

"In making these appointments, "Hunter said today, "I have sought to select those best qualified through experience and ability for the offices they are to fill.

"While it was not possible for me to appoint all the qualified aspirants for the positions, it was necessary to come to some decision and I trust that those disappointed in obtaining the positions they sought, will entertain no feeling of resentment."

Plans 'Get-Together.'

Hunter expressed the hopes of getting his official family together "as soon as other major appointments are made" and outlining the administration policies to them.

His chief objective he said would be to develop co-operation between all city departments with the purpose of giving the utmost in courtesy and consideration to

Fascists Trapped In Teruel, Fall of City "Inevitable"

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Frontier—(U.P.)—The fall of the ancient walled city of Teruel, spearhead of the nationalist salient in eastern Spain, is "inevitable," the loyalist government asserted today.

Bitter street fighting broke out in the city after the loyalists completed its encirclement, according to government radio broadcasts. The heaviest fighting was said to be taking place in a cemetery in the southwestern tip of the city.

Teruel was cut off entirely, official loyalist advices said. The government held all roads leading from the city and took over control of the important railroad line running to Zaragoza, Generalissimo Francisco Franco's stronghold in eastern Spain from where he planned to open a crushing, "final" offensive against remaining loyalist territory.

The loyalist offensive, engineered with unusual secrecy, so surprised the nationalists that it may virtually have broken up Franco's intended "big push."

Cat Out of Jail On $50 Bond

HUGO, Okla.—(AP)—Sheriff Cap Duncan can't understand all the trouble over what "looks to me like just a plain brindle cat."

The cat is out of jail on $50 replevin bond while two families fight for its custody.

Johnny Bennett, bus station manager, made the bond to recover the animal, which wandered into the station.

Mrs. F. O. Deatherage said the cat is hers. But Mrs. Bennett had become attached to it and induced her husband to go to court.

CITY TAX RATE STAYS SAME AS OTHERS CHANGE

School District Shifts Chiefly Responsible, Says Kolb, Setting Up Figures.

Changes in the tax rates in about half of the 47 taxing districts in Richland county, most of them due to shifts in school districts and changing bond requirements, are shown in the 1937 tax schedule announced today by County Treasurer John E. Kolb.

The Mansfield city rate, one of the lowest of any corporation in the county, is unchanged at 15.40 mills per thousand dollars' valuation. An increase of one-tenth mill in the county levy is balanced by a similar decrease in the corporation levy in the city which was reduced from 5.07 mills in 1936 to 4.97 mills this year.

School Rate Up.

The rate in the Mansfield school district was boosted two-tenths of a mill to 12.40. One-tenth represents the increase in the county levy and the other a one-tenth mill increase in the township levy.

An increase of two-tenths mill was made in the Madison township rate, the figure being increased from 13.40 mills to 13.60 mills. The township school rate remains unchanged, however, at 9.10 mills, increase of one-tenth mill in the county rate and township levy accounting for the increase in the total rate for the township.

The county rate, which applies to every taxing district, was increased from 2.30 mills to 2.40 mills to provide approximately $6,000 for additional budget requirements, Auditor Norman L. Wolfe said.

The Lexington corporation rate, which topped the county last year at 24 mills, is still the highest of any of the districts despite a one-mill reduction.

At Bellville, the village rate was

BAKER STRICKEN

Ex-Secretary of War Suffers New Heart Attack.

CLEVELAND —(U.P.)— Newton D. Baker, wartime secretary of war under President Woodrow Wilson and internationally known corporation attorney, was treated today for a recurrence of the heart condition he suffered in mid-summer.

A physician and nurse were called suddenly to Baker's home this morning. Mrs. Baker told the United Press that "Mr. Baker has suffered another slight thrombosis." The physician could not be reached immediately.

Baker spent several days last July in Saratoga Springs, N. Y., recuperating from a cerebral thrombosis he suffered at that time.

Appointees of Mayor-elect

JAMES M. HERLIHY

TRACY C. STYERT

FRED E. LINGAFELTER

JACOB RAHM

Here are the four appointees to city posts named today by Mayor-elect Claude M. Hunter, to take office with him Jan. 1. Styert will become service-safety director, Herlihy, waterworks superintendent, Lingafelter water department secretary and Rahm, parks superintendent. The latter three held appointive posts under the last Democratic administration, which was headed by former Mayor Charles M. Lantz. Styert was council president in the Lantz administration.

Bandages Removed, Youth Sees Through 'Gift Eye'

Cornea Transplanted From Eye of Man, 68, to Seared Optical of Farm Boy Clears Up 'Darkness.'

NEW ORLEANS—(U.P.)—Frank Chabina saw the light today—through the "gift eye" he obtained in a rare operation 10 days ago.

A young surgeon, who refused to permit use of his name "for ethical reasons," removed the bandages from the 19-year-old farm youth's left eye and asked:

"See anything, Frank?"

The youth hesitated, then whispered:

"Why, you've got two fingers up there."

"That's right," the doctor replied, "and now—"

"And now it's your whole hand," Chabina said.

Operation Seen Success.

The surgeon replaced the bandages. Chabina must wear them a few more days, but it appeared that the operation—transplantation of the disc of the cornea—had been successful.

Chabina's left eye was seared by lime dust two years ago, and the injury left scar tissue which began menacing the eyeball.

The youth became a patient in Charity hospital, and there he met 68-year-old John Wesley Amos,

PUNCHES, ROBS

Man Strikes Woman, Escapes With Purse and $11.50.

A young man who swung a wicked right hook last night knocked Miss Marie Sheedy, 150 West Sixth street to the sidewalk and grabbed her purse containing $11.50. He escaped in an alley.

Police were called to the Mansfield Lumber company, 237 North Mulberry street at 6 p. m. by Gilbert Vaughn, the night watchman, whom the culprit outdistanced in the dark after a three-block chase on West Sixth street.

Bleeding from a cut over the eye, Miss Sheedy told the officers that the man approached her from behind as she neared Coul street, on her way home. She said he struck her once on the head and then drove a punch right to her face that dropped her to the sidewalk.

Vaughn, on his way to work at the time, saw the man snatch the purse and chased him. He told police that the man outdistanced him as he sped up an alley.

Rome Breathes Easier as Tiber River Recedes.

ROME—(AP)—Fair weather after a week of almost continuous rain today promised Rome and the Valley of the Tiber river released from disastrous floods.

The river, which had risen to within a few feet of the top of walls built 25 years ago to hold it to its course, dropped slowly. Officials considered the danger of a further rise past.

BRYAN — (AP) — Virgil Evans, 36, West Jefferson, was drowned in a rain-swollen creek two miles northwest of here today when his automobile crashed through a highway guard rail. Dalton Gamboe, 19, of West Jefferson, was thrown clear of the creek, but suffered serious injuries.

SHORT CRIME CAREER LEADS 2 TO GALLOWS

Paroled Reformatory Inmates Doomed to Die as Aged Doctor's Kidnapers.

JURY VERDICT'S SWIFT

Conviction Against Pair Whose Abduction Brought Death Comes in 42 Minutes.

The brief career in crime of Orville Adkins and James Travis, paroled Ohio reformatory inmates today had placed them in the shadow of West Virginia's gallows.

They were found guilty of kidnaping by a Huntington, W. Va., jury in 42 minutes yesterday. The jury failed to recommend mercy, which makes the death sentence mandatory. Sentence was held up however, pending motions of defense attorneys to have the jury verdict set aside, and failing that, for a new trial.

Short Career in Crime.

The kidnaping, in which the two 24-year-old former inmates joined with a West Virginia ex-convict to abduct and hold for ransom Dr. James I. Seder, 79-year-old former prohibition leader, ho died later, was the second venture in crime for Travis, and the third for Adkins, so far as the records show.

In April, 1930, when he was only 17, Adkins was arrested in Camden, N. J., on a charge of auto theft, records at the Reformatory show, although they do not give the disposition of the case.

In October, 1935, Adkins, using the name of Pete Adams, was arrested with Travis, who used the name then of James Wensfield, in Circleville, Pickaway county on a charge of auto theft. That was, so far as reformatory records indicate, Travis' first criminal venture.

Came to O. S. R. in 1936.

In January, 1936, they were sentenced to reformatory terms of from one to 15 years. Both were paroled in July of this year, to go to West Virginia.

For a few months, their parole reports came in regularly. The last ones were received in October.

On Nov. 12, they were arrested in Huntington, along with Arnett Booth, 46, a former West Virginia convict, in the kidnaping of Dr. Seder.

Held In Mine.

The aged minister had been abducted 10 days previously, and $50,000 ransom for his release had been demanded. He was found by a farmer after he had staggered out of an abandoned coal mine where he had been held captive. Suffering from exposure, he died of pneumonia a few days after Booth, Travis and Adkins were arrested.

A charge of murder was added to that of kidnaping and attempted extortion against the trio.

It was on the kidnaping charge that all three were sentenced to the gallows. Booth having been convicted by a jury a week ago. The murder charges are still pending, but since the trio have been doomed to die on the kidnaping charge, it is not expected that they will be tried for murder.

DAVEY SPEEDS JOB LAW PLAN

Completes List of Workers For Early Insurance Benefits.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Anticipating federal and state approval of his plan to start payment of unemployment compensation early next year, Gov. Martin L. Davey directed all state departments today to furnish a list of their employes who might be used in setting up emergency machinery to make payments.

The governor said he hoped to have this emergency crew registering employes and otherwise planning for benefit payment by Jan 1.

Both the federal social security law and the state unemployment compensation law will have to be amended to make the governor's plan legally effective.

Kettering's Kin Wins Long Fight Against Paralysis

His battle against partial paralysis apparently won, Rex Long, 31, was back at his home in Loudonville today after spending six months in Mansfield and Dayton hospitals.

Nephew of Charles F. Kettering, vice president of the General Motors corporation, Long suffered a fractured back June 22 when he fell from a ladder while painting a building on Kettering's farm near Loudonville.

Long was able to walk with the air of crutches and it is believed he will suffer no premanent effects from his serious injury. He was paralyzed below the waist for several weeks after the accident.

Long was taken to the Miami Valley hospital, Dayton, late in the summer where he was placed under the care of an expert on vertebra fractures

FIGHT RETURN

CIO Delegates Held in Death Of Girl Buck Extradition.

PITTSBURGH —(AP)—Detective Inspector Walter Monaghan said today he had been informed two men held in New York City for questioning in the investigation of the mystery death of an attractive brunet divorcee had refused to waive extradition.

The two, Louis H. Green of Brooklyn and Fred A. Odenwalk of Ozone Park, L. I., were booked as fugitives from justice and held for a hearing today.

Meanwhile, in Pittsburgh, District Attorney Andrew T. Park set bail at $2,500 for two Brooklyn men detained as material witnesses. The four were delegates to the first annual convention of the steel workers organizing committee, which ended Wednesday.

The nude body of the divorcee, 30-year-old Rose Ault, was found in a bed in a room in a downtown hotel.

COLD DISPELLS FLOOD THREATS

Snow Forecast for Tomorrow As Rivers Overflow; Icy Streets Cause Crashes.

Residents of valley districts of southern Ohio and western Pennsylvania watched rivers overflow their banks today after almost 36 hours of continuous rainfall, but the forecast of snow flurries and colder weather Sunday dispelled the threat of another serious flood.

The mercury drop, which brought light snow to the Mansfield area last night, caused a heavy coating of ice to form on streets and highways and numerous minor traffic mishaps were reported in the district.

Heavy fog was blamed for an accident on Park avenue east near Hedges street at 2:15 a. m. today when a car driven by Jack Tunen, Ashland, crashed into a parked truck, resulting in minor injuries to Miss Rose Marie Corral, 19, and Paul Parker, 21, both of Ashland. Miss Corral had shoulder and knee injuries and Parker suffered scalp lacerations. Both were treated at General hospital and released.

Slippery streets were held responsible for two deaths in Cleveland in a traffic crash. Peter J. Susinskas, 34, and John Alabur-

JUST A 'HAM'

Wrestler Tells Court He Can't Pay $13 Weekly Alimony.

BUFFALO, N. Y. —(AP)— Supreme Court Justice Frank A. James granted the plea of Paddeus S. Skolimowski for a reduction in alimony payments from $15 to $12.50 per week, after Skolimowski termed himself "only a ham-and-egger."

Skolimowski, who wrestles under the name of Jack Washburn, said he was "only a clown wrestler who gets a couple of dollars" for performing before the "regulars put on their act."

"Parade" Curtain To Rise On Packed Theater At Midnight

THE TIME—11:45 tonight.

THE PLACE—The Ohio theater.

THE EVENT—The Christmas charity show, sponsored by the Three Muster-Cheers, for the Community Christmas fund, with a cast of 70 persons.

There are the nutshell facts about the "Passing Parade of 1937," which takes over the stage of the Warner Brothers Ohio theater tonight. Mansfield will laugh tonight so that on Christmas day 700 unemployed Mansfield families may have a cheery and gala dinner.

The "Passing Parade" will be, it seems certain, the best of all the shows sponsored by the Muster-Cheers and 1,500 persons had reserved seats at noon today. Approximately 130 remained in the balcony, all of them good seats for a stage production, but it is expected that all of them will be gone by curtain time. The doors of the theater will open at 11:15.

Some 25 amateur Thespians dragged wearily homeward at 2 a. m. today after a midnight rehearsal of "The March of Time," one of the acts in the Parade. But they didn't mind work today, because it is for Christmas—and they had the satisfaction of hearing onlookers say "Mansfield will be talking about this for weeks."

Neil Ruhl of the Ruhl Radio shop worked at the controls of a new public speaking system which he has installed for the show, all night and until early this morning.

Among the many new features this year—and the 1937 show is full of surprises and new features—will be four uniformed officers to see that a new regime is inaugurated. For this year the audience is going to listen to the players and not vice versa as in former years.

Wage-Hour Bill Defeat Upsets Roosevelt Legislative Plans

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A climatic house rebellion which shelved the wage-hour bill checkmated administration leaders today in their efforts to push through much of the Roosevelt program before adjournment next week.

In a tense, overtime session, the house sent the battered measure back to the labor committee last night despite an appeal from Majority Leader Rayburn (D.-Tex.) that such a step would mean "the death of wage-hour legislation."

The 216-to-198 vote, which deal the administration its first major legislative defeat since the senate killed the Roosevelt court bill last summer, was offset somewhat by senate approval of the other major item on the special session program—the "ever normal granary" farm bill.

The senate approved the measure 59 to 29, ending four weeks of wrangling only two hours before a coalition of Republicans and southern Democrats doomed the labor standards bill in the house.

Victory on the farm measure, however, came after weary senators saw it nearly sidetracked in favor of a "cost of production" substitute offered by Senator McAdoo (D-Cal), which lost by six votes.

The house passed a much different farm bill last week, and both measures now must go to a conference committee for adjustment of the points at variance. Indications were a settlement would not be worked out until early in January.

6 SHOT, SCORES ARRESTED IN NEW VIOLENCE

2 Deputies Wounded as CIO Forces Clash With Workers At Missouri Plant.

POLICE FILL 2 JAILS

Non-Strikers Beaten, Chased Through Streets; Gas Bomb Hurled at Foreman.

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—(U.P.)—Violent, widespread disorders marked the United Automobile Workers strike at the Ford assembly plant today.

Sporadic fighting between strikers and non-strikers continued throughout the night. Scores of men were jailed from both sides. Six men had been shot, several badly beaten and others chased through the streets in general outbreaks throughout the northeastern part of the city in the past 24 hours.

Homer Martin, international president of the U. A. W. was en route to the city to address a mass meeting tonight as the union men were roused from the passiveness with which they had conducted the strike for a week.

Car Blocks Road.

In one disturbance, where three men including two constable's deputies were shot, five CIO men blocked a road with a car and fought with 300 non-strikers who were leaving the plant in an auto caravan under armed escort. Each side accused the other of the shooting.

Those wounded were Don Mustane, 30, and Bob Scott, 20, officers; and Russsell Williams, 28, a by-stander. All were struck in the legs with buckshot and were not seriously hurt.

Two men who gave their names as Andrew Shackleford and William Foley, appeared at the Independence hospital for treatment of shotgun wounds. They said they were Ford workers but would not say how they were shot.

Marvin West, 32, was taken to a hospital by police with shotgun wounds in his arms and legs. He said he passed a caravan of Ford workers and one man leaned from a car and shot him without cause.

Lawrence Domiano, 26, a foreman at the Ford plant, was injured by a gas bomb while patrolling the plant grounds.

Two precinct jails were full of strike prisoners most of the night. At one time there were 150 prisoners, 82 packed into one cell at the Sheffield jail, but later scores were released without charges.

Found in Street.

One man, who said he was Charles Cooper, a member of the U. A. W. at the Chevrolet plant, was found lying in the street, badly beaten. He said Ford workers rode by in a car, then stopped, to beat and kick him.

Several others from both the ranks of the U. A. W. and non-strikers who have continued to work in the Ford plant, were beaten and chased through the streets.

BOY CRUSHED

Bricks Fall on Him While He Watches Toy Santa Perform.

DEARBORN, Mich.—(U.P.)—His nose pressed against a store window where he was watching a toy Santa Claus, David Mayott, who would have been eight years old on Christmas day, was crushed to death last night by brick coping which fell upon him from the roof of the building.

Several other persons missed death by inches when the huge mass of mortar and stone broke away without warning and crashed to the street in front of a candy store.

Police said the accident was caused by the weight of ice on a holly-decorated wire attached to the coping and stretching across the street.

BAFFLE POLICE

Three Shot At Beer Parlor Shun Questions.

DETROIT—(AP)—Three young men strolled out of an east side beer garden last night and were shot down on the sidewalk by four gunmen who fled on foot.

Two of the victims were taken to a hospital in serious condition and given blood transfusions. The wounded wouldn't talk and the police homicide squad was puzzled.

Woman Cleared In Shooting Of Son-In-Law.

NEW CASTLE, Pa.—(AP)—Mrs. Rose Donofrio was acquitted by a jury today of a charge of murder in the death of James Aiello, her son-in-law.

Tall Youth Demands Refinement

By VIRGINIA LEE

WHAT IS the matter with a six-foot youth who can't find the right girl?

One has written to me and wants my advice. He seems to have everything but money, supports his mother, but she is willing to make her home elsewhere if he finds a wife.

He doesn't want a gold-digger or a cheater, and she must have a good character. He says he has "been around," but his conscience is clear. "I don't claim to be perfect, but I'm not afraid to have my past brought up," he writes.

PUZZLED: Why don't you look around, choose some girl who seems to have the qualifications, and then put her under a period of "observation?" My impression is that many boys stand off and criticize girls and really don't give them a chance to make good.

I have a certain young man in mind. He had been "stung" once, and rather badly hurt. The girl he finally married and is happy with was a friend of his family's, and it just happened that he was thrown with her a great deal. He found a lot of fault with her—thought she was quite unattractive at first. However, she was handy for dates and disengaged at the time and willing to go out with him, and so they gradually "discovered" each other. The criticism grew less and less, until that young man was sincerely in love, and had won the girl.

Men are often just a little afraid of girls. And being afraid, they stand on the defensive and criticize, without letting themselves get to really know the girl. The girl naturally feels this critical attitude and doesn't show her best side, and so it goes on. More matches have been made, I believe, by circumstances simply throwing young people together so that they got to know each other well in spite of themselves, than in any other way.

Open up, son, and give the girls a chance to know you and to let you know them, and you will find that most are the type you describe. Gold-diggers and cheaters are the exception, rather than the rule.

MRS. J. L. B.: I'll pass on our child psychologist's advice on the subject of the two-year-old who throws her food on the floor. He says when a child does that her meal should be ended right there. Don't scold or spank. You don't want her to associate pain and unhappiness with food taking. Simply pick it up and end the meal, even if she hasn't eaten all she wants. Don't feed her between meals either.

As for her little habit of calling her daddy by his first name, all children—or almost all—do it, and they get over it in time. They think it is cute, and your small daughter knows it (eases you, too, and so she snickers. I did when I read about it. One young mother I know is being tormented by her two-year-old who calls her "Bonita," which is her name, but few people call her that and it is a name she dislikes very much. If you pay no attention, but always speak of your husband to her as "Daddy" she will drop it, sooner or later. Don't be emotional about things like that that really don't matter, dear young mother.

"The Authority on Authorities"

INVITE THEM TO HELP

WHEN THE defenders make a guess, they usually save the declarer the necessity of making one. That is why it is sometimes better to throw one of them in the lead, in the hope that he will return the desired suit, than to break that suit yourself. If he doesn't fall for this device, you can still do your own guessing, but with the knowledge that at least you gave them an opportunity to solve the problem for you.

Here South started the bidding with 1-Heart, West overcalled with 1-Spade, North bid 2-Clubs, South 2-Diamonds, North 3-Hearts and South 4-Hearts, which West doubled.

The opening lead was the spade K, followed by the A and a third lost two tricks and certain to lose to the diamond A, the declarer could not afford a trump loser. He was uncertain as to whether West's double was based on the possibility of winning a trump or whether to play for the drop of the outstanding trumps.

Before trying out the trump situation, however, he decided to gain a little more information about West's holding, so he led the diamond K. When West won this he felt certain that South's plan was to ruff out the diamond suit. He therefore swiched to a trump and the declarer's worries were over.

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, December 19.

Sunday's horoscope is a most propitious one for affairs of church and clergy. Look for solid growth and stability of property values or investments. Elders and work should thrive and real estate increase. Change is likely, as are some peculiar private anxieties and adventures. Sign papers with care.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a profitable and progressive year, with much occurring to put affairs on a solid foundation and to increase real possessions. There may be strange problems of a personal nature. Be sure to sign all manner of writings with care.

A child born on this day may have many brilliant, original and constructive talents, and, at the same time, it may be steady, dependable and practical.

For Monday, December 20.

Monday's astrological forecast is for a particularly exciting day, with much commotion in the business and private lives. The latter is under high stimuli, perhaps in social or romantic affairs. Elders may figure in these, perhaps perplexingly. A sudden disruptive force may cause unexpected adjustments. Be cautious with papers, law and speculation.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a very lively year, with much stirring in the business as well as social, domestic and romantic lives. An element of the strange or disturbing may cause change or certain readjustments.

A child born on this day may be versatile, energetic, changeable and adventurous, with proclivities to exaggerate, boast and "show off," unless properly directed and educated in early life.

Vacationing Gives Rise To Questions

By EMILY POST

Dear Mrs. Post: While I was away with the children this summer, some business associates of my husband asked him to dinner quite often. In fact, I have gathered that they made his summer in town quite bearable As it happens I don't know any of these wives and have met very few of the men, so I seem to be at a disadvantage in showing my appreciation for their kindness. I will, however, feel a lot better if there is some way that you can suggest by which I could show them a little hospitality. We couldn't ask them to spend week-ends with us during the summer because we were too far away.

Answer: Invite them to whatever you can. If your budget happens to be unusually generous in its allowance for party-giving, then I would suggest that you ask four at a time (making six with yourselves) to dine and go to the theater This would be the nicest return you could make. Not only do people like this invitation almost more than any other, but it would give you the best chance of getting to know them. But if your income is not big enough for this, you could just as successfully invite all of them together to an informal buffet dinner—or Sunday night supper.

Dear Mrs. Post: During a short vacation this summer I stayed at the house of a friend. While there she was invited out to luncheon and to play bridge at the house of some one I did not know. Without any explanation or apology, she accepted and left me at home to amuse myself with only the dog for company. She of course saw to it that the icebox was filled with plenty to eat. At the time I tried not to feel hurt and must admit that I had a lovely day resting and reading and enjoying the garden. But since, I have often wondered whether this is the accepted present-day attitude of hostess toward guest, and if it is, why isn't more said about the guest's latitude? The puzzling thing of it all is that she prides herself on reading everything you write and following your advice to the letter.

Answer: I am sorry to have to accuse myself as much as her, because since you tell me she follows my book to the letter, I have an unhappy feeling that she may have taken a description I gave of a casual hostess as a pattern! There are dozens upon dozens of pages in my book describing the virtues and talents expected of a perfect hostess and only part of one page about a hostess whose description was certainly not intended to be followed unless by an exceptional some one who likes to run her house like a hotel, and invites those only who prefer hotels to the home of friends. Such houses were of course enormous ones and as completely staffed as a hotel. As a matter of fact, very few houses of this type ever existed, and their number has become almost extinct. In any case, the manners of a hostess whose house is as impersonally run as a club has nothing to do with giving a visitor no choice but to get her own lunch and sit alone with the dog!

CROCHETED SQUARES PATTERN 1484

By LAURA WHEELER

Beauty that Time cannot dim is found in this crochet—a design suited to cloth, spread, scarf or buffet set. The simple 7½ inch squares go quickly, and you'll be surprised to see how many you can do at a sitting. Keep on repeating the "key" square until you've enough for the size article you desire. Use string or finer cotton. Pattern 1484 contains directions for making the squares and joining them to make a variety of articles; material requirements; illustrations of the square and of all stitches used; a photograph of the square.

Send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) for this pattern to The Mansfield News-Journal, Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth Avenue, New York, N. Y. Write plainly PATTERN NUMBER, your NAME and ADDRESS.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

WE LOOKED at each other in helpless subdued silence for a second or two after Dicky's comment that there would be no holding Philip Veritzen if he should decide that I knew where Noel and Mary were. There came to me the fantastic notion that there hovered over us the actual physical shadow of the powerful man who, to all appearances, was so bent on ruining the happiness of his son and daughter-in-law.

Mary's grandmother, her face the most stricken of all of us, was the first to recover her poise.

"Suppose there isn't any holding him," she snapped at her son, as if in some way he was to blame for the whole affair. "We're none of us children to be frightened by a bogey man, although," she paused. her lips twitching with grim amusement, "a stranger coming into the room just now would be justified in saying that's just what we are."

"Suppose you tell us what we'd better do, Mother," her son said slyly, but his mother either did not recognize his mischief, or ignored it.

Let Them Stay.

"Thats' just what I intend to do," she said loftily. "In the first place it's all nonsense to have these children plan to leave here and go to any hotel. They'll be much happier, much more comfortable, and much safer, right here at the farmhouse."

She paused for a second and I knew that she was again visualizing the danger to Mary from Jack Leslie, refugee from the law, which we all feared.

"If the worst comes and your father does come down here," she addressed Noel directly, "you and Mary will have ample space and comfort in the suite of Margaret's father. It even has a little balcony. Jim can take your meals up the back stairway, and Margaret, Richard and myself can keep your father's attention so distracted that he will not dream you are in the house."

"But, Granzie," Mary ventured doubtfully, "how will we ever get out to come in again? We can't just walk downstairs you know. We'll have to arrive in Uncle Dicky's car from somewhere to justify Auntie Madge's story."

"And what's so difficult about that?" her grandmother demanded. "Hasn't anybody in this house any common sense, or do I have to do all the planning?"

Signal For Help.

This was a signal for help, I very well knew. That Dicky also recognized his mother's inability to give Mary an adequate answer, I knew by his prompt response.

"It won't be an insuperable task," he said gravely. "We'll have Jim park the car a few feet in from the entrance of the old woods road. While our distinguished visitor is discussing the bounteous and delicious meal which we shall press upon him, the kids can seal out the back way, cut up to the wood road, drive the car across the fields to Ticer's, and then along our regula. road home, turning in the gate with elan, eclat and empressment. To all appearances you'll just have rolled in from your excursion. And to save him a case of the jitters, we'll stage your appearance as soon as possible after he gets here. You can employ your histrionism to pretend that Noel was so anxious to get back he just had to return to the farm to see if by any chance his car might be finished sooner than it was promised."

Slim Chance.

"I don't suppose there's any chance of that, is there?" Noel asked, a note of indecision in his voice betraying that he was torn between a desire to take the fullest advantage of the reprieve my carefully planned "accident" to the clutch had given him, and a fear of the unknown penalty his father might possibly impose for his failure to return to the hotel on time.

"Only one in a million," Dicky returned easily. "And now, before you do anything else, suppose you take your belongings up to Dad's suite and get all ready to hole in there if you have to. Of course, you don't have to stay up there unless he appears on the scene, and I'll have a man at the gate to keep him waiting for a minute or two before letting him in. Later I'll explain that Dad wished a man there for protection while he is away on some mysterious errand And if you'll excuse me now, I'll drop around to the office of the state troopers, and give them the necessary earful about the dope to give Mr. Philip Veritzen when he calls them."

Household Hints

By MRS. MARY MORTON

Menu Hint.

Broiled Lamb Chops
Potato Cakes or Slices
Broiled Pineapple Slices
Mushrooms White Radishes
Blackberry Pie
Coffee, Iced or Hot

With the whole world calling to the cook and housewife to "come out of the kitchen" these pleasant summer days, a few "quick tricks" to simplify and speed up meals are helpful. A grilled meal tops the quick tricks and serves a meal that is varied and delicious. Any of the tender cuts of meat are suitable for broiling or grilling, and vegetables of the tuber variety usually broil best. They should, of course, first be cooked in salted water until tender before broiling. There are many fruits that are at home in the grilled meat setting, and among them are the popular banana, apricots, prune and pineapple.

Canned pineapples is a versatile fruit, tasting just as good in the summer as in the winter, and vice versa. It combines well with many of the meats or fish. Slices may be arranged on the broiler pan, sprinkled with brown sugar and dotted with butter, and broiled with the meat and vegetables. The broiled slice of pineapple may then be varied by placing a fat prune in the center of it, said prune stuffed with a walnut or square of cheese, or, if you prefer, a mushroom cap, large stuffed olive, or a spoonful of red currant jelly.

Combine With Tomato.

Another trick is to combine the broiled pineapple slice with a thick slice of tomato and broiling, topping with chopped bacon or grated cheese. Small tomatoes, filled with crushed pineapple, dotted with butter and broiled, also give a delightful quirk to many a meat dish.

Vegetable cups make attractive and tasty accompaniments to many courses, such as canned salmon, sea foods, and cold meat platters. Try filling these vegetable cups with crushed pineapple, too. It is particularly good in tomato, cucumber, beet or carrot cups.

Many of these suggestions may be applied to dishes other than grilled meals, such as cold meats, vegetable plates, roasts, stews and leftovers. They are simple enough, but make the chosen dish look as if you had spent hours in their making, while actually they require little time.

For a tasty relish to eat with cold meat cuts, try the following recipe:

CRUSHED PINEAPPLE RELISH—Fruit from No. 2 can crushed pineapple, one-fourth cup brown sugar, one tablespoon vinegar. Combine ingredients in a baking dish, dot with butter and bake until lightly browned. Serve hot or cold.

Book of the Week

BOOK REVIEW—Last Flight, Amelia Earhart, Harcourt, Brace & Co. 229 pp $2.50.

Those who knew Amelia Earhart, or heard her speak, tell of her charm and magic character, her modesty and enthusiasm for the air. This book captures all of that for us because she wrote most of the book herself. As she completed each stage of the journey, she sent back her diaries, her charts and the running log which she kept in the cockpit. Her husband, George Palmer Putnam, has arranged the text. As bit by bit the story falls into place, it tells the entire trip.

The earlier chapters tell how she first became interested in flying, who it was who gave her the opportunity to be the first woman flyer to cross the Atlantic, and how she later married him. Also, she tells of her first plane and how she got her Lockheed on a trade-in. Then in her own interesting style, she tells of her trip across the Atlantic and from Mexico City to New York, also her hop across the Pacific from Honolulu to Oakland.

Her work at Purdue came as part of her great interest in aviation and for women. While there she conceived and worked on the idea of this last long flight. Amelia Earhart was interested in aviation from many viewpoints, and each trip contributed to her knowledge and experience. Then, too, she had a real eye for beauty, such beauty as we who stick-to-the-earth miss. But she didn't miss any, and in a charming conversational way passes on sights we may never get to experience for ourselves.

Every hop of the trip is recorded. From Miami to the blue waters of the Caribbean, across the jungles of S. America, from thence across the S. Atlantic to Dakar, across Africa, along the coast of Arabia, over India, Sumatra, Australia to New Guinea. There at Lea she paused before the most difficult step of the entire trip—to find the tiny speck which is Howland island. This is the last we know of her; but her spirit, her enthusiasm, her love for the air will go on.

To read this book is to begin to understand some of the magic and wonder that made up this unusual woman.—E. S.

Retains Stronger Schools

Mid-State League Prestige Not Weakened By Withdrawals.

By OSCAR RUHL
News-Journal Sports Editor.

THE decision of Butler, Danville and Fredericktown to withdraw from the Mid-State league rather than continue their rivalries with Madison will not lessen the prestige of the Class B high school football circuit. Although the personnel of the league has been reduced, the conference retains the larger schools which consistently produced the stronger clubs. The strength of Madison is the reason for the withdrawals, but the schools also found it difficult to compete with any degree of success against Loudonville, Bellville and Mt. Gilead. Prospects for the immediate future are not any too encourraging at Butler, Fredericktown and Danville, either, we understand. The late members have been represented by some fine football clubs in the past, but they have not been able to build up to the Mid-State league standard in recent years. The enrollment at Fredericktown and Danville compares favorably with the other schools, but Butler has an exceptionally small student body, and deserves to escape criticism for severing affiliations. Madison has lost only one game in the Mid-State league since it was organized five years ago, and will probably remain a menace for years to come, but Mt. Gilead, Bellville and Loudonville are anxious to continue relations. There is no immediate concern over the possibility of the present set-up of the league falling apart. The circuit as it now shapes up is one of the strongest Class B leagues in the state, and an improved brand of ball should be displayed on the Mid-State gridirons next fall. There will be no set-ups as there were this year.

Mansfield High Club Invades Shelby Tonight for Tilt With Whippets.

MANSFIELD high school's hardwood representatives will make their initial out-of-town appearance tonight at Shelby where they appear in the first of four games scheduled with former N.C.O. conference rivals.

The game will be the third of the season for the Tygers, who defeated Columbus South, 23 to 21, last week after dropping their opener to Akron Kenmore, 22 to 20.

Coach Russ Murphy said that his club was in splendid shape for tonight's tussle, and expects to keep the starting lineup consisting of Lewiss and Scott, forwards; Dials, center, and Hallabrin and Lyons, guards, intact.

The Tygers reserves will meet the Shelby seconds in the preliminary game at 7:15 p. m.

Galion Turns Back Shelby, 39 to 25.

GALION—The Orangemen of Galion got off on their right feet in their bid for the N. C. O. conference championship here last night when they turned back Shelby, 39 to 25.

Galion jumped into an early lead, and never trailed in the rough and tumble struggle. The score at the half was 17 to 9. The Whippets spurted in the third period to cut the lead to five points, but the hosts went out and lengthened their margin in the final frame.

Adams and Maidens, with nine points apiece, led the Orangemen, while Lehman was high for Shelby with six.

Galion annexed the victory in the preliminary game by a 23 to 19 count.

Score First Victory Over A's Since 1921.

ASHLAND — Bucyrus high accomplished a feat last night that no Redman combine had done since 1921—defeat Ashland high in a North Central Ohio conference basketball league tilt on the Ashland court. The affair opened the league season for both outfits.

Ashland grabbed an early lead and at the half was ahead 13 to 12, but Bucyrus rallied to snatch a 25-16 advantage as play went into the final period.

Carlisle topped both teams in the individual scoring with 10 points, while Glasener and Burns each tallied six to pace the losers.

Matches to Provide A Variety Of Action On Can Show Monday

THE two extremes in wrestling will be on tap at the "Can o' Food" show in the Armory Monday night when four of the leading lightheavyweights of the game come to grips.

Two of the cleanest and fastest youngsters in the wrestling world will meet in one of these contests, while the other tilt will pit two of the real "man-killers" of the lightheavyweight division against each other in what is technically nown as a "hatchet" match.

The two clean-cut boys are young George Becker, "German Bomber" from New York City, and Walter Stratton, powerful young farmer boy from Leetonia.

The two "toughies" are Bobby Blake, the blond whirlwind from Columbus, and Sterling Davis, Houston, Tex., "Silver Streak," and when they lock horns here Monday night the fur is sure to fly.

The program was completed today with the signing of Francis Steele, Plymouth, and "Dutch" Shultz, rough and tough individual from Milwaukee, in a special one fall, 20 minute time limit match.

Women and children will be admitted for a can of fruit or vegetables, which will be turned over to the Three Muster Cheers.

APPEARS IN CLEVELAND

The little girl seems headed for a fall, wouldn't you say? But she happens to be Maribel Vinson, star of the touring ice extravaganza, "Gay Blades," so she probably knows what she's doing. She is appearing at the Arena in Cleveland this week-end.

"Spoiler" Risko's Ambition Spoiled By Light-Heavy King

CLEVELAND —(U.P.)—"Spoiler" Johnny Risko, roly-poly veteran of 14 years in boxing, celebrated his 35th birthday today as a somewhat doubtful figure in the heavyweight division, after losing a 10-round decision to Light-heavyweight Champion John Henry Lewis, 23-year-old Pittsburgher.

Risko, who, after a three-year absence from the ring, reappeared suddenly this year as a possible "white hope" in the heavyweight ranks, had hoped for a possible match with Champion Joe Louis. Until last night, Risko never had lost a fight with a colored fighter.

And, until the third round it appeared the Clevelander had better chances of winning than the two-to-one odds laid against him.

But the powerful right-hand punches which carried 183 pounds of Lewis' power behind them, blasted Risko's hopes. They tired the 198-pound "spoiler."

Lewis repeatedly landed solid right-handers to Risko's head. Several shook the "spoiler." A few left him shaking his head dazedly. But none stopped him. He came back at Lewis each time, throwing his peculiar overhand right punches.

By the fourth round, Lewis was using his elbows successfully to tie up the pudgy Risko's flailing arms.

Buddy Takes Tanning Before Kayoing Hogan

NEW YORK — (U.P.) — Buddy Baer kayoed Eddie Hogan in three rounds, but whether he "looked good enough" to warrant a February shot at Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis was the question facing Promoter Mike Jacobs today.

The big "kid" brother of former titleholder, Maxie Baer, took a terrific tanning from the Waterbury, Conn., giant before he landed a third round righ uppercut to the jaw that sent Hogan to the canvas before 7,000 spectators in Madison Square Garden last night.

Hedges Hangs Up 75 Points

Wins Bi-County League Tilt Without Effort.

Hanging up 37 baskets and one free throw, Hedges junior high school representatives in the Bi-County league routed Hayesville, 75 to 14, at Hayesville.

Hedges scored 22 points in the first period, 15 in the second, 22 in the third and 1* in the fourth to establish a new record for the league. The Mansfielders held a 37 to 8 lead at the intermission. Hoover set the scoring pace with 16 points, Phillips added 12 and Wentz and Glenn each accounted for 10.

Ontario Edges Rams, 25-23; Butler Extended By Lucas

Kiblermen Rally In Second Half to Stop Madison; Bulldogs Continue to Share County Lead by Hanging Up 29 to 26 Triumph.

By CHARLES MARTIN

ONTARIO HIGH'S defending district and county champions marked up their third straight county league victory last night by edging a fighting Madison high quintet, 25 to 23, before a capacity crowd at Ontario.

The Ontarioans, trailing midway in the third chapter, unleashed a desperate rally to gain an advantage they were able to maintain until the final whistle.

Holds Early Lead.

Coach Al Fendrick's smooth-working aggregation shot into the lead in the opening minutes, and, although it bottled the Ontario attack during most of the hectic melee, was unable to stop the winners' final drive. The defeat was the second straight for Madison.

Prion Breaks Tie.

Led by Matt Hager, a member of last year's crack squad, Coach Orville Kibler's machine knotted the score on his free toss and then shot into the lead on Dave Prion's free toss.

Madison attempted to overtake Kibler's club in the final seconds, but couldn't get loose. Joe Miller put the Rams back into the ball game with a pair of free tosses to make the score 25-23, but it was no go.

The Rams held a 5 to 3 lead at the end of the first period, but Ontario rallied to knot the score at 12-all at half time. Madison again took a 14 to 12 lead on two fouls before Ontario began to click.

After Prion put the defending champions ahead, Hager came through with a difficult side shot to give them a slim margin. As play was resumed in the final stanza, the winners were ahead, 17 to 15.

Miller led both clubs in the individual scoring with 10 points, while Hager tallied nine for the winners.

The Ontario Reserves walloped Madison, 21 to 12, in the preliminary attraction.

Butler Turns Back Stubborn Lucas Club.

BUTLER—The Bulldogs of Butler high unleashed a thrilling last-period rally here last night to edge a stubborn Lucas outfit, 29 to 26, to cling tightly to a share of first place with Ontario in the hectic Richland county basketball league race.

With the score dead-locked at 22-all, Butler led by Howard Hall's two goals, outscored the invaders 7-4 to remain in the undefeated list.

Coach M. L. Sterns' athletes grabbed an early lead in the nip-and tuck affair and att he end of the opening stanza were ahead, 8 to 6, and at halftime held a 15 to 14 advantage.

Lucas, paced by Tom Greulich, came to life to knot the count at 22-all before the Bulldogs' final spurt.

Kenny Miller, Butler forward, and Greulich, each secured 11 points to pace their respective teams. King followed in the Bulldogs' scoring column with six, and Crawford added eight to the losers' cause.

Butler's reserves edged Lucas, 24 to 21, in the preliminary tilt.

Lexington Chalks Up First Triumph.

UNION—Limiting their foes to only three field goals, the Minutemen of Lexington marched to a 38 to 15 victory over Union in a Richland county league game here last night. The victory was the first league triumph for Coach John Rees' men.

The Lexington club turned in its best performance of the season, while the hosts were extremely inaccurate from the field. Union caged less than 9 per cent of its shots.

The veteran Richard Rule was the chief menace for the Minutemen. He caged five baskets and three free throws for a total of 13 points. Baker scored two of the Union buckets.

Lexington held a 12-6 lead at the end of the first period, 20-7 at the half, and 28-9 at the conclusion of the fourth frame.

The Union seconds won the prelim, 18 to 8.

PURE OILS JOIN LOOP

Meet Westinghouse in Debut In City Class A League Monday Night.

A new contender joined the ranks of the City Class A league this week, President Chet Swank announced today.

The new entry is known as the Pure Oils, managed by Fritz Vogel. The Oilmen will make their debut Monday night at Mansfield high school against the strong Westinghouse quintet.

Lineup Doubtful.

The personnel of the new club has not been filed, but, according to Swank, the Oils will include many former high school and amateur favorites.

Vogel's team faces a tough assignment in their inaugural. The Westies dropped a two-point decision to the Yuncker Sports last week, and stack up as one of the stronger quintets in the city's premier circuits.

The Westinghouse lineup will be strengthened Monday by the return of Steve Voelker, one of the outstanding centers in the league last winter.

Sports Meet Elks.

The opening game on the program Monday will pit the Yuncker team against the Elks, the clubs which won the opening games this week.

While the outcome of this game will not make or break the title chances of either team, it will determine the strength of the two quintets.

JOHNSVILLE WINS NO. 2

Shafer Scores 19 Points in 33-25 Victory at Cardington.

CARDINGTON—Johnsville registered its second Morrow county league victory in three games here last night when it defeated Cardington, 33 to 25. Trailing by six points at the end of the first period, the Johnnies held a 17 to 15 advantage at the half. Shafer tallied 19 points for the winners. Johnsville won the prelim, 21 to 13.

EUGENE, Ore.—(AP)—The University of Oregon Athletic board accepted the resignation of Prince G. Callison as head football coach last night, ending his six years in that position. Callison had been criticized by students after the team won only four games.

ALL-STARS ASSEMBLE

EVANSTON, Ill. —(AP)— The All-East football team, which will meet an All-West team of collegiate grid stars at San Francisco on New Year's day, assembled today at Dyche Stdium for an initial workout under co-coaches Bernie Bierman of Minnesota and Andy Kerr of Colgate.

LEADERS MEET TONIGHT

AKRON—(AP)—Leaders of the Eastern and Western divisions of the National Basketball league clash here tonight as Whiting, Ind., meets the Akron Goodyear quintet.

DAYTON, O.—Buddy Knox, 190, Dayton, knocked out Oscar Hanson, 192, New York, (1).

TYGER TANK PROSPECTS DOUBTFUL

Although victorious over the Alumni team by a one-sided margin, the prospects for this season's Mansfield high school tank team are problematical.

The strength of the team will probably be determined Saturday, Jan. 8, when the Tyger merman go to Sandusky for their opening interscholastic meet.

Heading the list of veterans this season are Capt. Paul Smith and Al Barren. Walker showed much promise in the Alumni meet, and is expected to add strength to the lineup.

The Mansfield tankmen defeated the Alumni, 62 to 16, with Barren winnin gboth the 50-yard and 220-yard free style events. The Alumni did not win a single first.

Smith won the 100-yard breast stroke, Allen, 100-yard backstroke; McCartney, 100-yard free-style; Shaw, diving. The 150-yard winning medley team consisted of Beam, Strohm and Walker, while Biddle, Betz, Walker and McCartney made up the 220-yard relay lineup.

CAROL LOMBARD will be one of the telephone company's best customers on Christmas morning. Between 10 and 11, the star has booked long distance calls to Joan Bennett in Quebec, to the Freddie Marches in New York, to Wesley Ruggles in Paris and other friends in Miami and London . . . Officials at Twentieth Century-Fox decided to build up Annabella, the European actress, as a spitfire rather than as a straight glamor girl.

"The Last Gangster."

Gangland and penitentiary life, roaring newspaper offices in big cities, and romance are mingled in a dramatic plot in "The Last Gangster," Edward G. Robinson's new film opening at the Ohio theater Sunday. The picture deals with the downfall of a gang overloard who is trailed by "G-men," jailed on an income tax fraud indictment and imprisoned for 10 years during which time his wife changes her identity to save their child from the disgrace of his name. She remarries. He then emerges from prison and sets out to find his wife. At the same time the former members of his gang set out to "get" him. Supporting the star are James Stewart, Rose Stradner, the Vienna star, and Lionel Stander.

"45 Fathers."

Jane Withers, the juvenile character actress, comes to the screen at the Madison theater Sunday in "45 Fathers." The little star is supported by Thomas Beck, Louise Henry and the Hartmans. Forty-five millionaire bachelors sign up as Jane's guardians. They try to make a lady out of her, but she almost makes a wreck out of them. They attempt to give her that finishing-school touch. Despite her ill-luck in doing bad whenever she attempts to do good, she manages to save a wealthy bachelor from the entanglement of a scheming society siren intent on getting his money. The manner in which she performs this deed comprises a large portion of the picture.

Laurel and Hardy at Majestic.

Stan Laural and Oliver Hardy brings their pranks to the Majestic theater Sunday for a two-day run in a re-issue of "Beau Hunks," one of their first full-length comedy features. Jackie Cooper in "Boy of the Streets," with Maureen O'Conner, Marjorie Main and Matty Fain, complete the double-feature program. The second film depicts the adventures of a youngster who grew up in the slums of a big city. He gets mixed up with a gang of mobsters and how he returns to the straight and narrow forms an interesting plot.

"History Is Made at Night."

Charles Boyer and Jean Arthur comes to the Ritz theater Sunday in "History Is Made at Night." The pictures cast Boyer as a man-about-town and the most popular head waiter in Europe, while Miss Arthur is seen as a New York mannequin. They meet in Paris and fall in love. Boyer saves Jean from a stranger in her apartment, and he is later accused of murder. He follows Miss Arthur to America, and then the two sail for France to clear his name. But complications arise when the boat on which they are crossing strikes an iceberg. Starting Monday at the Ritz as a midnight attraction will be "Gambling With Souls," an expose of what goes on behind the sinful scenes of a great metropolitan city.

LONDON STORES TO CURB THEFT

Check Up $5,000,000 Loss Yearly Through Thefts By Shoplifters.

LONDON —(U.P.)— British retail stores annually suffer an estimated loss of $5,000,000 due to shoplifting, nearly half of it during the Christmas rush.

In an effort to stamp out this uninsurable loss, many large firms have instituted far-reaching systems.

In some cases, alarmbells have been installed beneath "bargain tables." Modern systems for communication between counter assistants and store detectives have been introduced. Some stores have taken the trouble to build concealed "lookouts" from which detectives can watch entire departments.

Sales managers have found that 85 per cent of the shoplifters are women and that middle-aged women are the worst offenders.

Whole families sometimes work together in a gang, using the baby's pram to cart away the loot.

Women are assisted by pleasant or inquisitive children who divert the attention of the floor-walkers.

Professional women shoplifters often wear specially designed clothes with double skirts and deep pockets in the lining of coats.

The lingerie thief often assumes modesty, and asks to be left alone to inspect expensive underwear. She not only tries it on, but she keeps it on—and slips out of the shop before the assistant has time to check over the rejected goods.

'CHILD MARKET'

Vienna Beggars Hired Children By Day, Police Say.

VIENNA—(INS)—A "child market," where beggars were supplied with children hired by the day, was recently raided by the Vienna police. Begging, it was discovered, proved far more profitable when "parents" could exhibit a starving child to passers-by. The hiring fee ranged from 50 cents to one dollar per day, according to the "pulling power" of the child in extracting alms.

RFC SEEKS TO BALANCE BOOKS

Wants to Write Off 'False Assets' For Marketability of Its Securities.

WASHINGTON— (AP) —The reconstruction finance corporation, it has been learned, is planning to ask congress to write $2,500,000,000 of relief and other governmental loans off the corporation's books. An informed official said the request involved only a bookkeeping transaction and that the loans already have been listed as expenditures on the general treasury balance sheet.

The RFC, it was said, wishes to "clean up" its balance sheet of what have been described as "false assets" in order to improve the marketability of its securities, in case a new issue should be floated for railroad or other financing purposes.

The action also would be designed to answer the criticism of Senator Byrd (D-Va.) and others, who have said the loans to the Works Progress Administration and other government agencies actually were gifts.

BUYS BIRDS

State Purchases 700 Pairs of Hungarian Partridges.

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—Purchase of 700 pairs of Hungarian partridges at $6.85 per pair has been announced by Conservation Commissioner L. A. Wooddell. The birds will be shipped from Hungary within the next few weeks.

The commissioner said that the partridges would be placed only on areas where past experience has proven that they will thrive and reproduce. Repeated efforts to start propagation in the southern and eastern Ohio hill counties have been entirely unsuccessful, it was pointed out, while in the flat territory of central and northwestern Ohio the birds have prospered.

In Defiance and Henry counties 250 pair of birds will be placed on controlled shooting areas.

Seeks To Exclude Married Women In Business, Industry

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Bachelor Patrick J. Dunn, Tuscarawas county's Democratic representative in the Ohio general assembly, believes that employment of married women is the cause of depressions and other economic ills of the state and nation.

He has proposed before the house taxation committee that laws be enacted prohibiting the employment of married women in business and industry and in public positions.

"You never will be able to break the depression, and solve the relief and delinquent tax problem until you stop giving jobs to married women," Dunn said.

"If I ever marry, and I think I shall not, my wife shall stay in the home where she belongs."

Dunn sponsored a bill last winter which would have prohibited man and wife both being employed by the state. It failed to pass.

STUDY AND TALK

Girls Prefer to Study With Conversation, Statistics Show.

BERKELEY, Cal.—(U.P.)—Men students prefer studying without a conversational dressing and girl students prefer their studying with it, according to library statistics of the University of California. Of the total number of students who prefer the library for studying where conversation is not permitted 75 per cent are men. The girls prefer places where they can talk and study at the same time.

CRITICIZES NEW FARM MEASURE

Farm Bureau Head Says Its 'Tragedy to Agriculture' and Avoids Issue.

CHICAGO— (AP) —Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau federation, has criticized the farm bill passed by the house last week, calling it "a tragedy for agriculture," and asserted surplus control is essential to maintain farm prices.

The house agriculture committee wrote a bill that leads the farmer to think he might get parity prices, said O'Neal in a speech prepared for delivery before the organization's annual convention, but it offers no mechanism at all to give him parity.

"Practically all they have done," he declared, "is to amend the soil conseration act and add marketing quotas to it. And the marketing quotas have been set at such high levels that prices would be absolutely wrecked before they could be invoked. The responsibility for high quotas must be laid on the majority of the members of the house committee.

"As the measure now stands, it has avoided the surplus issue instead of meeting it squarely."

'O'Neal had only praise for the senate bill.

And he expressed hope that when the legislation gets before the house and senate conference committee differences can be ironed out and "we will have a bill that will really control surpluses and stabilize prices."

FLOOD-STRICKEN CHURCHES UNITE

Buildings, Furnishings Damaged, Two Congregations Merge.

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—The merger of two churches at New Richmond, O., a village above Cincinnati was contributed directly to the Ohio river flood of last January, according to the Ohio Council of Churches with headquarters here.

With their buildings and furniture badly damaged, the Cranston Memorial Methodist Episcopal church and the New Richmond Presbyterian church decided to unite and rehabilitate jointly. As the village of 1800 people still has six other churches, the consolidation was very favorable.

MOUSE HANGS SELF IN WEB

Spider Trap Leaves Rodent Hanging Head Downward.

PIPESTONE, Minn. —(U.P.)— Earl Klinsing, farmer living near here, has a snapshot of a mouse that hanged itself by the tail when it became trapped in a spider web.

The mouse, apparently falling into the heavily woven web head first, became entangled in such a manner it was left hanging head downward by the tail and died there.

OILS ATTRACT FURTHER STUDY IN STOCK MART

Texas Commission Orders 78,000 State Wells to Close Next Four Sundays.

NEW YORK —(AP)— Moderate rallying inclinations were displayed by leading stocks in today's market.

Oil shares attracted further study as the Texas Railroad commission, in an effort to prevent waste and hold production of Crude Petroleum within market requirements, ordered the closing of the state's 78,000 wells for four consecutive Sundays.

Recovery proponents derived some encouragement from reports that demand for cotton textiles during the past week was the heavist since last April.

da, 52, were killed when their car skidded into a safety zone.

Heavy rain yesterday and last night at Bucyrus brought the city's total fall for the year to 54 inches, an all-time record. The figure was an inch above the former record set in 1929.

Thawing snow and heavy rain sent the Ohio river to a 19-foot stage in the "Golden Triangle" district at Pittsburgh where damage was heavy in the flood last January. Colder weather was expected to halt the rise before the river reaches flood stage at 25 feet, Weather Observer W. S. Brotzman said.

Both the Great and Little Miami rivers were bankfull in the Cincinnati area and a number of low-lying districts were flooded. The Ohio river was rising a quarter of a foot an hour. A top stage of 30 to 35 feet by the middle of next week was predicted, however, as against the 52-foot flood stage.

Rainfall in Mansfield for the past two days measured .78 of an inch, Observer Otto Sprunger said. Average temperature for the past 24 hours was 32 degrees, nearly eight degrees above normal. It was 30 at noon today, the same as last night's low mark.

DO THEIR BIT

Senior High Pupils Bring Yule Cheer to 38 Families.

Students of Mansfield Senior high school this morning did their bit in spreading Christmas cheer by delivering food and toys to 38 needy Mansfield families.

Each basket contained some kind of meat, fruits, eggs, butter, vegetables, other foodstuffs, and toys, which had been contributed during the past week by the students.

Food and toys were contributed by students of each home room at the school, under the sponsorship of the Social Science Service club. Deliveries this morning were made by members of the Student Representative council.

The collection was supervised by V. D. Coe and Miss Ruth Dunham of the faculty.

DEFEAT UPSETS NEW DEAL PLAN

ful of salvaging another item on the president's program, called the house into session today to debate legislation designed to stimulate home construction. The senate recessed for the week-end.

Defeat of the house leadership's attempt to get the wage-hour bill approved left the future of this legislation shrouded in uncertainty. Chairman Norton (D-NJ) said the labor committee would have to decide whether to renew the fight for its enactment or draft an entirely new bill.

There was talk that a new approach to the labor standards problem might be sought, possibly through the system of federal licensing of firms in interstate commerce proposed by Senators O'Mahoney (D-Wyo) and Borah (R-Idaho).

Rep. Ramspeck (D-Ga), one of the few southerners who fought for the wage-hour bill, expressed belief the United States would have to turn to the licensing plan "under which every business man would have to decide for himself whether he wants to engage in interstate commerce and come under federal regulation."

BOSTON WOOL

BOSTON—(AP)—(U. S. Dept. of Agr.)—Only a very moderate amount of business was closed yesterday in the Boston wool market.

Fine Ohio Delaine wool was sold in small weights at 31 to 33 cents in the grease. A number of bids were received from worsted manufacturers, but many of their bids were below asking prices. Some spot original bags of fine territory wool was sold at 68 to 70 cents scoured basis, the length of staple running bulk average to short French combing.

Hunt Armed Pair Who Wounded Trooper in Gun Battle

[redacted] Not That It Matters

—By JANE WILLIAMS

REACTIONS of a Tired Woman Just Before Going to Sleep: Every year, at exactly this time, I vow vehemently and violently that THIS will be the last of the Three Muster-Cheer shows for me; that I will NOT go through this Community Christmas again, that it isn't worth it, that I have SOME rights to a normal life in December; that MY family is important, too; and that there will be hungry, hopeless people on Christmas day long after I'm dead—it's looking back AFTER Christmas and remembering how swell everyone was and forgetting the unkind criticisms, that I decide maybe we had better keep right on.

Everything is so much easier this year, though, because the lads at the Westinghouse have practically taken over the production of the show. . . . Wonder what A. E. Allen, Westinghouse generalissimo, would say if he knew that his men refer to him rather affectionately as the Old Man? . . . Guess he wouldn't care; so many bosses are called other things. . . .

Such a long procession of people asking for Christmas baskets. . . . Relief in their eyes when they find out that their names are on the list. . . . Interested in that editorial in Thursday's News-Journal about the investigation and analyzing of 20,000 relief cases and that only two per cent actually were chiselers; think that's about right. . . .

HOPE the charity show goes over big. I think it's good—but then I'm prejudiced. Last night I couldn't sleep because I was afraid we hadn't sold enough tickets to fill the house; tonight I can't sleep because I'm afraid we have oversold it—and people get so mad when they have to take back their money. . . . But it WOULD be awful if we hadn't sold enough, because some families would have to come off the list then.

Wish I had reached out through the box office window and popped that chesty so-and-so who got so tough about reservation of his tickets. . . . "I heard you always pulled all the best seats before the board opened," he said. No lady says "It's a damn lie," but a lot of 'em think it. And when I explained that it was customary to pull tickets for the members of the cast for their families, the night before the seat board opens, because they have worked so hard and so long on the show, he said "Is their money any better than ours?"

Why aren't theaters built so that all the seats are eighth row, center? At 10 o'clock Friday night someone hopefully asked for seats in about the eighth row center. Explained that they had all been taken the first three minutes after the window opened. He was indignant because the best seats are all given out to the first comers. "You ought to hold some of the good seats back," he said. I snickered.

Oh well, I still believe in Santa Claus.

READ that some place school teachers and mothers were tilting because teachers insisted on telling children that there isn't any Santa Claus. So silly of teachers. It only plants a suspicion and doubt of them in the child's mind. And she, in turn, is not telling the child the truth.

Because there really IS a Santa Claus. It is a symbol of the very spirit of Christmas itself; a spirit that manifests itself in the giving of gifts, of kindly deeds of charitableness to all mankind. And to deny that it exists indicates blindness to everything but cold, material facts.

And if children can picture that kindly spirit, or its symbol, as being a jolly, round-cheeked little man in a red suit, is there any great harm in it? God knows they will learn to adjust their imagination to the realities soon enough.

DID you ever, while doing your Christmas shopping, pick up articles on the counter and look to see where they are made? You will be surprised to find that about 50 per cent of the things bear a "Made In Japan" stamp; or perhaps Czechoslovakia. Most of the Christmas wreaths for your windows are made in Japan; the thumb tacks with which you pin them to the window sill.

And while we gullible Americans keep the Japanese workmen busy by buying millions of trinkets and household articles from them, millions of our own workmen are idle because they can't live on the wages paid their yellow competitors.

In a down town market window is a display of Geisha Girl salmon. Every American should know that brand of salmon is filched from Alaskan waters, by Japanese fishermen just at the boundary of the three-mile limit off the Alaska coast; that floating Japanese canneries snatch the fish as they are coming back to American waters, can them aboard ship and undersell American fishermen in American markets. The current issue of "March of Time" opened a lot of American eyes to the steal.

The best way to stop it is to make sure that the salmon you buy is American canned.

DO YOU know the one item that is most in demand at Christmas time? Perfume. It's a costly gift, but men find a way of buying it for their women. As an industry it probably entails more imagination and romance than any other, and some time when you find a clerk who has the time, ask her the history of the perfumes and the bottles on her counter.

Those three crystal and gold crowns filled with different scents, in a parchment like case, for instance; they are inspired by the mysterious box that the Empress Alexandria, last czarina of the Russians, always carried about with her on trips. It was a small parchment case, closely guarded and to this day no one knows the secret of it. Prince Matchabelli, being in the perfume business, decided it was a box holding bottles of her own rare and secret perfumes and accordingly was inspired to design his Jewel Box of three crowns.

Lanvin goes in for intriguing names: "My Sin," which is a fascinating and elusive scent: "Deviltry," a spicy odor; "Scandal" which suggests scandal and intrigue; and then there is LeLong's "Whisper" and "Indiscreet."

All of which is decidedly fascinating to one who in her adolescent years thought "Jockey Club" at 15 cents a bottle was sumpin.

Use Dynamite To Break Painesville Ice Jam

250 FAMILIES FLEE AS RIVER FLOODS HOME

Coast Guardsmen Work Swiftly To Evacuate Cottages In Water 3 Feet Deep.

PAINESVILLE — (U.P.) — Two hundred pounds of dynamite were to be exploded today by Lake county engineers striving to break an ice jam in the Chagrin river and release backed-up waters converging on an area five miles squire in Willoughby township.

The dynamite was obtained early today by Lake county Engineer H. B. Wilson after Fairport coast guards rescued 250 residents of cottage colonies bordering the river after an all-night struggle.

Almost the entire Chagrin harbor summer colony and territory along the river south of Lake Shore boulevard was flooded as a result of the ice jam. Depth of the flood waters ranged from two to 12 feet.

Forms Rapidly

The ice gorge started forming at the mouth of the river about 8:30 p. m. so rapid was the rise of waters that 75 families were trapped before they became aware of the danger, authorities said.

A dozen babies were among the 100 children evacuated from their homes in boats manned by Fairport coast guards under Machinist's Mate Ray Behling.

Nearly 150 other residents of the Chagrin harbor colony here made homeless by the flood. Attending a school entertainment in nearby Wickliffe, they found their cottages flooded upon their return about 11 p. m.

Behling said about 30 cottagers refused to leave their homes despite the fact that floors had been covered by two to three feet of water. They were in no immediate danger, however.

All traffic over Lake Shore boulevard, a main artery to Cleveland was halted when the pent-up waters flooded the highway to a depth of three feet near the point where it crosses the river. At dawn the ice jam extended nearly three miles from the mouth of the river.

SPECULATE ON FRANK'S FUTURE

G.O.P. Leaders Attempting to Foresee Ex-Prexy's Role in Political Affairs.

CHICAGO — (AP) — Dr. Glenn Frank's selection as chairman of the Republican policy committee aroused speculation today on his future role in party affairs.

If he accepts the position it will mark his first active participation in national politics. After a conference with Chairman John D. M. Hamilton yesterday he said he would take the post if he were able to arrange personal and business affairs.

The former University of Wisconsin president long has shown sympathy with the liberal wing of the party in his speeches and writings although he has never been in the forefront in Republican politics.

He was among those mentioned as a possible nominee for president to the Republican national convention in 1936. During the latter part of his term as university president Dr. Frank was critical of various phases of the New Deal, particularly that which he termed the "economics of scarcity."

The committee which Dr. Frank was named to head will number between 135 and 140 and will be charged with drafting a declaration of principles to guide the party in the next congressional and presidential elections. It will also recommend the advisability of a mid-term convention to the national committee.

36 CONVICTED IN BOMB PLOT

Face Prison Terms In Illinois Coal Train Conspiracy.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. —(AP)— A federal court jury today convicted all 36 defendants of conspiracy to bomb Illinois coal field trains.

They were found guilty on all three counts.

The verdict was returned at 9:25 a. m. before Federal District Judge Charles G. Briggle.

The convicted men, most of them affiliated with the Progressive Miners of America, face maximum penalties of four years imprisonment and $20,000 fines.

DAIRY EXPERT HITS RAW MILK BAN, URGES RIGID INSPECTION

More rigid sanitary inspections in the production of milk was advocated by Professor Oscar Erf, head of the dairy division of the College of Agriculture at Ohio State University, when he addressed a joint session of the Mansfield Board of Health and the Richland county Raw Milk Producer-Distributors' association last night at the city building. Erf, who was brought here by the distributors in their fight against the proposed ban on raw milk, urged the board not to pass the mandatory pasteurization ordinance.

"I am opposed to any universal pasteurization law," he said. "There are other regulations that can be enforced that will safeguard the milk supply."

In explaining that there were numerous farms throughout the nation where science was carrying on experiments in raw milk for the advancement in production, he urged board members to consider this field in the interests of public health.

"If the gates are closed in Mansfield, it will tend to hamper the research work being carried on here at one of the experimental farms.

"My business is to promote health. I am not against pasteurization, but I am opposed to closed doors that will tend to hinder the work of science in its advancement towards a safe milk supply."

He stressed the need for sanitation and inspection.

"Consider the cow and the personnel," he said. "Get rid of the source of infection by more rigid inspection in the production of milk and you have a safe raw milk supply. It is the only practicable thing to do—and far cheaper.

"Let the laws be lenient, but clean up," he said. "Clean up the cattle, equipment, shelters and personnel. Hold regular inspections and you will produce a higher standard of raw milk that will do more to promote health than any pasteurized milk you might be able to get."

Erf contended that when the pasteurization process is used that it tends to lower the grade of the milk produced because the producer can dump almost any kind of a product on the market after it's pasteurized.

He was accompanied here by his assistant and technican, E. D. Hildreth, also from the University.

Four members of the board of health, Glenn L. Bierly, Atty. J. H. Gongwer, Dr. K. E. Buhr and E. R. Aderman, along with Health Commissioner Roy C. Rehder and 12 members of the producer-distributers' association attended the three-hour meeting.

Erf was introduced by Neil S. Robinson, president of the association.

900 MORE CANS

Youngsters Flock to Last Can Matinee at Ohio.

Approximately 900 more cans of food were added today to the store of food which is accumulating like a small mountain at the Salvation Army hall for the Christmas baskets.

Seven hundred cans of food came from Warner Brothers Ohio theater, where the last of the can matinees for children was held this morning, and another 120 came from the firemen of the city. The firemen took up a collection among themselves and purchased five cases of tomatoes, corn and succotash, to be distributed in the Christmas baskets. In smaller donations from women's clubs there were about 70 cans of food this morning.

All clubs who plan to contribute canned goods to the Community Christmas must report them to the Christmas office, Canal 2525, before Thursday morning.

Scott Brown, Mansfield druggist, whose cartoons and quips have appeared in a number of the popular magazines, breaks into print again in the January issue of Judge, nationally-known humor publication. His contribution, which he describes as a "500-word illustrated gag," is the latest of his art works. Drawing is a sideline with Brown who once studied art at the Chicago Art institute.

Miss Ruth Dunham, Latin teacher at Senior high school, was presented with a Christmas present by students of her fifth period Cicero class yesterday that should remind her of this particular group for some time to come. The present was a goldfish, a bowl, and box of fish food, and in honor of the class, they gave the fish the name of "Cicero."

Not all of the individuals who contribute heavily in time and effort to the Community Christmas project will appear on the stage at the charity show tonight. Employes at the Ohio theater will be on the job for 18 straight hours. They were at the theater at 8 a. m. today preparing for the can matinee, and they will work their regular shifts and remain through for the midnight show. Employes who will work the long day are William Knarr, Jack Lyons, Robert Fisher, William Condon, Nick Baki, Harry Delaney, Harold Old ,Tom Fike and, of course, Frank Harpster, manager.

Another subject for one of these oddity cartoons has been brought to light in Mansfield. It is a cat whose chief diet is peanuts. The Tiger Persian is owned by Marian Birch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Birch, 591 Park avenue west, who brought the feline back from California while on a vacation there last summer. The cat places the peanuts in his mouth in the same manner as a squirrel. It is seven months old and tips the scales at 7½ pounds.

OHIO TROOPER SHOT IN WILD AUTO CHASE

Patrolman May Lose Sight in Eye After Couple Escapes, Start Shooting.

WILMINGTON —(AP)— Southwestern Ohio police watched roads closely today for two men described as "bad looking customers" who escaped in a running gun battle from Highway Patrolman Carl Whipple near New Vienna.

A bullet from their high-powered rifle crashed through the windshield of his patrol car, showering him with splintered glass and causing cuts which may cost him the sight of his left eye.

Block Roads.

As they sped into the darkness late yesterday, word was flashed by the highway patrol radio to all peace officers in this section to blockade roads and stop the pair's speedy sedan with Illinois license plates.

Whipple, 26, detained them in the center of New Vienna on suspicion and searched them. He reported finding two .45-caliber pistols and marchedt hem across the street to call the Wilmington patrol station.

As he telephoned, he said, they broke away, dashed to their car and sped out of town. He followed in the patrol car, firing his own gun.

A half mile outside the village they stopped their car, he said, and fired at him four times with a rifle. One shot shattered his windshield, another hit the side of Mrs. Mallard Storer's house in New Vienna.

Whipple stopped immediately for first aid treatment by Dr. L. H. Fullerton for the cuts on his face. Dr. Fullerton reported later that his left eye was badly cut.

Joins Search Again.

Despite his injuries, Whipple summoned help and then joined in blockading roads in the vicinity. More than 40 officers of Clinton and Highland counties deployed over 30 miles of roads immediately, stopping all cars.

The pair, whom Whipple described as "bad looking customers," later were reported heading for Cincinnati, but they outdistanced pursuers and were lost in the night.

Whipple, married and the father of one child, was transferred to the Wilmington patrol station from Massillon just three weeks ago.

KILPATRICK QUITS AS MEMBER OF HOUSE FINANCE COMMITTEE

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—Rep. Bishop Kilpatrick, D., Trumbull, recently elected majority floor leader, has submitted his resignation from the important house finance committee to Speaker Frank R. Uible, it was learned today.

It was understood requests urging Rep. Uible to ask the majority leader for his resignation from the committee have been lodged since Rep Kilpatrick was elected at the beginning of the special session to succeed Rep. Jacob Davis D. Pike Rep Davis resigned his seat to accept a judgeship in his county.

Those requesting the resignation argued that a majority leader, because of his prestige as floor spokesman for the administrations views, was in a position to influence committee members on important legislation, particularly the pressing relief legislation now being considered.

It was pointed out, however, that Rep. Kilpatrick has followed an independent course to a large extent. He was a member of the unofficial committee that drafted the relief program advocated by the League of Municipalities, and on at least one occasion has urged adoption of features of the league program as opposed to the Davey program.

Rep. Kilpatrick's resignation will become effective at the pleasure of the speaker, who fills all committee vacancies.

Among those named as leading contenders to fill Rep. Kilpatrick's position on the committee were Reps O. E Whitacre, D., Stark and Ray A Knight, D., Summit.

REMEMBER THAT NIGHT

By MARGARET GORMAN NICHOLS

(Copyright 1937)

CHAPTER X

She had only just come in for her bag in the middle of the floor was unopened.

"I know why Bill did it," Roxanne said.

Roxanne was thinner and very pale. Even her golden head seemed to have lost its sheen. She looked as if she had not slept for nights.

"Why did Bill do it?" Karen asked, removing the white satin coat.

"Because he was going blind!" Her small white teeth bit into her lower lip. "His parents told me! He didn't want to be a burden to them or me. He was proud and strong. There's something about a strong man who can't use his strength, who's helpless, that's—that's terrible. His parents are grand people. I didn't know people lived like that—with dignity. They live in an old brick house with a garden in the back. They live in order. And they were swell to me because he loved me. It was a new life for me after a home where they was a lot of kids always fighting, and not enough money."

Gently Karen said, "But blindness isn't hopeless, Roxanne. Doctors do wonders these days."

"There's something I haven't told you! It—it makes it worse. His parents think he's still alive! His mother said Bill wasn't a coward and it took more courage to live. He drew out all the money he had. They think he put his things on that boat in Miami and then walked off. If that's true, it's worse because wherever he is, he needs his parents and me. And we'll never find him."

Making a hopeless gesture with her small hands, she sighed. "It's over. The curtain dropped on the last act."

Noticing Karen's evening frock for the first time, she said, "You got my job, didn't you? And Sam Kasten like you. Sure, he did."

"I've been keeping your job for you. I'll call him tomorrow and quit."

Roxanne's wise eyes narrowed. "Has Philip Ashley seen you?"

"Tonight. He was with a boy named Tommy Nolting."

Roxanne nodded. "Know who he is? I thought everybody did. Rolling in money and as faithless as they come." If she went back to her job, she thought, Karen would lose the opportunity of seeing Philip. "No. You keep the job until your big chance comes. I'll get something else. I always land something. Why don't you stay with me? We'll go fifty-fifty until you're famous."

"Now," Karen said, "you are making fun of me again."

In the morning she gave up the little room and moved the remainder of her belongings to the apartment. And the same afternoon when she came in with a new evening dress in a box under her arm, Roxanne pointed to a white box on the table.

"I think they're flowers and I'll bet they're from Tommy Nolting. Watch your step with him. I don't trust him."

Opening the box, Karen took out a large corsage of violets.

"Yes, from Tommy," she said. "He's just bought an estate on Long Island and I'm going swimming there Sunday. But that's not what I want, Roxanne! I don't want to play at love. I want a part in Philip's new play. I won't ask, and he won't offer."

* * *

Every day that week flowers came and every night Tommy waited for her in the lobby. They danced in many places. They rode through the park. Tommy talked about his farm in Maryland, his stables, how much money he had lost at the races, and the fireworks he was planning to have at his Fourth of July party.

Roxanne had a job singing in a night club. And though she talked about Bill less and less, Karen knew that he was never out of her mind.

Karen went to Tommy's newly acquired Long Island estate on Sunday afternoon. The white house was the largest she had ever seen. A sweeping lawn of velvety green surrounded it. The swimming pool sparkled in the sunlight.

When he stopped the car, she said, "But I thought you were having other guests."

He laughed. "No guests until the Fourth. You'll find the bath house to the left of the pool and I'll meet you in fifteen minutes."

The bath house was modern and luxurious. Quickly she changed from the printed silk dress to the turquoise silk suit she had bought yesterday.

Tommy waited beside the pool. "Philip told me you came to New York to be an actress."

"He thinks that's a joke—my being an actress. I've been a source of great amusement to him."

"You don't like him? He's a great guy, but he's in love." He smiled at her. "You'd like to put one over on him, wouldn't you? I mean do something so you'd have the last laugh since you think he's been laughing at you. Well, when Bernie Tappen—he's a producer—gets back, I'm going to take you to see him and I'm pretty sure he can do something for you."

Her look of gratitude touched him. But Philip should see that expression. It was Philip who was creating this opportunity for her with Tappen.

"Do you mean it, Tommy? I didn't know playboys and producers had much in common."

He grinned. "Oh, but we do. Beautiful girls."

"I'll be grateful to you for the rest of my life. I've tried. You don't know how I've tried." Philip would see. "It seems," she said thoughtfully, "that the only way to break in is to know somebody."

"Yeah. And if all the little girls with stage ambitions would realize that, they'd stay home."

"That's what Philip thinks I should have done."

They swam. After a while a servant, bringing out cool drinks, said that Tommy was wanted on the telephone. It was a call from Maryland. Later she was to remember the call from Maryland and his hurrying to the house.

* * *

She was going to meet a producer! Tarnished dreams became bright again. To fall in love, to be a great success... In Harriston they had been separate dreams. Now, knowing Philip, loving him, they were one. "I'm a fool," she thought. "He doesn't know I'm alive unless we meet by chance. He is here but his heart is in England with Lilyan Kane."

Tommy came back, frowning.

"I hope nothing is wrong," Karen said.

"No. That is, nothing much. How about another dip? Then we'll drive back to town for dinner."

It was dark when the car stopped before the apartment house.

Pulling off his hat, Tommy smiled his attractive smile.

"I haven't tried to kiss you since you refused the first night. But I thought by giving you a break with Tappen, I might get one with you."

She lifted her face and kissed his lips tenderly. But there was no magic in it. To be kissed by Philip, she thought suddenly, would be so different from this. To be kissed and held and loved by him...

"I wish I'd known you before, Karen."

"Before what? You said that once before."

"You'll know soon enough. And I'm not giving you a line when I say you're different from any girl I ever knew. It's a dumb thing to say but I mean it. I like to look at you But I haven't a chance. You're not kidding me. You're crazy about Philip."

"Do I show it so plainly?"

"Not when he's around. He thinks you hate him for what happened at Helene Ward's that night."

Philip thought she hated him! But it was better that way—far better than for him to know she loved him.

Tommy said, "I'm going to drop in on Philip now and drag him away from work. He doesn't know it yet but he's bringing you out to my place on the Fourth. I'll have guests and won't be able to leave. He always gets to parties late anyway. I'll hold over the best fireworks until you and he get there."

"Perhaps he won't like..."

"I'm not asking him. I'm telling him."

Fireworks, he thought, as he left her! He had heard fireworks over the phone that afternoon from an outraged mother in Maryland.

"You asked Marion to marry you, Tommy! You gave her her ring! Both Mr. Leland and I know you are reckless but we believed you really loved Marion. You've known her all your life. We haven't formally announced your engagement because we've been waiting for you to come back. And now we are told you are being seen everywhere with a girl who sings in a night club!

"And so we are taking it upon ourselves to announce your engagement whether you are here or not..."

But Karen and Roxanne slept the morning that the engagement of Tommy and Marion Leland was announced. And Philip was so busy with his play that he saw neither friends nor newspapers.

On the afternoon of the Fourth he called Karen. "Tommy dropped in several nights ago and told me I was to have the pleasure of taking you out to his party, Karen. I'll wait for you in the lobby tonight. It will be good to see you. I haven't seen anybody. Not even Brenda. For what Tommy said, it is going to be quite a party."

Karen was wearing the pale blue chiffon dres saud the white satin coat and silver slippers when she stepped off the elevator and saw Philip, waiting. Her heart rose.

Why of all the men in the world did it have to be Philip Ashley with his bronzed head and lean brown face and amused brown eyes? Why did it have to be a man whose love Lilyan Kane had taken to England with her? Alone with him, riding out to Tommy's party, she must guard her heart and deny her love. But all through that day before and after his orchids came with his card, she had anticipated tonight with joy and with pain. It was nothing to him. He was merely doing Tommy a favor by waiting until late to bring her. But to Karen it meant a little time alone with him and dancing with him again. When you were in love, you snatched at moments even when they were bittersweet.

"I hope I haven't kept you waiting, Philip."

He smiled. "No. I only just came."

"The flowers are lovely. Thank you."

"I was afraid Tommy might forget."

"He did."

"Forgive him. He's been running around like mad and getting things for this party. But he has to use his energy some way. Shall we go?"

The night was pleasantly warm. Over Manhattan's tallest building there was a mellow summer moon.

"People in Harriston are coming home from parties at this time," Karen said.

Philip turned his head. "That's the first time you've told me where you came from. You wouldn't tell me the first night I met you. Is there a secret you wish to leave in Harriston — didn't bring with you?"

"It isn't a secret in Harriston."

They rode for quite some time without speaking. Of what or of whom was he thinking, she wondered. Of Lilyan, whom he would see soon? Of his play in which Brenda would again be the star?

But Philip was thinking of Karen, thinking her lovely, wondering if Tommy had mentioned Tappen to her, wondering if Tommy had kissed her, and of a secret that was not a secret in Harriston.

"It's odd how we ran into each other," he said at last. "But some of the nicest things that ever happen to us come about through coincidence. Most romances begin that way."

With one hand he steered the car and with the other lighted a cigaret. And in the brief flame she turned her head and looked at him the same instant he looked at her. Then he switched off the lighter and they were in the dark again.

"You're young and very beautiful, Karen," Philip said. So beautiful that in an unguarded moment he had wanted terribly to kiss her. "What does love mean to you?"

After a while she said, looking ahead at the road, "Everything. It means more than being famous as an actress. I know that now." Thoughts never spoken before were said to Philip now because she loved him. "People in love make so many mistakes blindly. They don't mean to. They kill the very thing they're trying to keep alive. Sometimes you love a person your imagination creates Then some people let their love become commonplace. But love is like a flower that has taken years to cultivate. If you give it fresh earth and sunshine and water and don't let the weeds choke it, it will live. But it needs attention." She did not dare look at him. "I suppose you are laughing at me again. A small town girl telling a famous playwright..."

"If you'll look at me, you'll see I'm not laughing," Philip said soberly. "You have nice thoughts, Karen. Keep them. Hold onto them."

"What does love mean to you?"

"I can't add anything to what you said. You made the words and the music."

You made the words and music... The tears sprang to her eyes, tears that he must not see...

VETERINARIANS TO JOIN IN WAR ON HORSE FLIES

Six Assigned to Treat Infected Animals In County's 18 Townships.

Six Richland county veterinarians had been enlisted today in the county campaign against the bot fly in horses, with each of the doctors assigned to treat infected horses in a three-township area, County Agent George B. Ganyard said.

Letters have been mailed to each stock owner in the county with the request that he sign a card and return it to the county agent's office if he desires treatment for his animals. A special group price will be made by the veterinarians, Ganyard said.

The drive is sponsored by the Richland County Draft Horse Breeders association and the county extension department.

Asks Farmers Aid.

"The bot fly population can be greatly reduced if a large percentage of farmers co-operate in this campaign," Ganyard said. "Every horse and colt freed from these parasites will make better use of its feed and show a more thrifty condition."

As larvae, the bots enter the horse's stomach in early winter and attach themselves to the animals stomach walls. They obtain their food from the blood stream, draining the vitality of the horse.

Veterinarians and the townships they will serve follow:

Dr. W. R. Hensen, Shelby-Plymouth, Cass and Jackson townships; Dr. S. E. Taylor, Mansfield—Bloominggrove, Butler and Franklin townships; Dr. J. L. Ward, Mansfield—Weller, Mifflin and Madison townships; Dr. Claude C. Wadsworth, Mansfield—Sharon, Sandusky and Springfield townships; Dr. G. J. Nixon, Mansfield—Troy, Washington and Monroe townships; Dr. C. B. Stanley, Bellville—Perry, Jefferson and Worthington townships.

There are nearly 25 acres of land in Texas for each inhabitant.

CHURCHES PAY HOMAGE SUNDAY TO CHRIST CHILD

Pageants and Programs To Be Given In Observance of Birth at Bethlehem 1,900 Years Ago; Others Arrange Candlelight Rites For Friday.

Christmas, the most significant religious event throughout the Christian world, will be observed tomorrow, six days in advance of the holiday, by the majority of Mansfield churches with homage to the Christ child being paid at morning and evening services.

At least seven churches will mark the advent of Christmas with midnight candlelight services Friday, the singing of yuletide music forming the background of the ceremonies.

Sunday school classes and children will figure prominently in the Sunday morning and evening services.

In some instances the junior and senior choirs and classes will join in the singing of Christmas music. Pageants built around the birth of Christ in a Bethlehem manger more than 1,900 years ago, will be given by many of the city's religious groups.

A number of the special services will be included in the Sunday school periods in the morning.

Churches which have announced services for 11 p. m. Friday include the Park Avenue Baptist church, St. Mark's and St. Paul Lutheran churches, and St. John's Evangelical church.

A solemn high mass at midnight will usher in the Christmas observance at St. Peter's Catholic church Christmas eve. Other masses will be held during the morning.

The service at St. Luke's Lutheran church will begin at 11:30 p. m. Friday.

St. Matthew's Lutheran congregation will mark the arrival of Christmas with a service at 10:30 p. m. Christmas eve.

FIRST CONGREGATIONAL

The junior and senior choirs of the First Congregational church, under the direction of A. LeMoine Derr, will give a program of Christmas music Sunday at 7:30 p. m.

Soloists during the program will be Miss Kathleen MacIntosh, Russell Tither, Mrs. J. C. Klinger, Mrs. H. H. Clingan, and Wanda Hess. The program includes "Rhapsody on Old Carol Melodies," played by Miss Louise Krause, organist; "Joy To The World," by the choir; the carols, "Cantique de Noel," and "Silent Night," by the junior choir, and a pageant, "The Story of Christmass" presented by the senior choir.

A special musical program also will be given during the morning service at 10:45. The program will include the prelude, "Christmas in Sicilly;" the anthem, "There Were Shepherds," by the senior choir. For the offertory Mrs. Clingan will sing the 91st Psalm.

Rev. Peter Young will speak on "Vision and Reality."

ST. MATTHEW'S LUTHERAN

The Saturday Bible class of St. Matthew's Lutheran church will present a Christmas program at 7:30 p. m. Sunday under the direction of Mrs. William Proschell.

The annual Sunday school entertainment is set for Tuesday evening in the church parlors. The primary, junior and intermediate departments will give the program. Santa Claus will be on hand to give the Christmas treat.

At 2 p. m. Sunday the primary department will hold its Christmas party in the church parlors. The party will include a program of recitations, songs and exercises by the children to be followed by refreshments. Mrs. C. R. Stanley and Mrs. Merle Pittenger are in charge.

STILL HOPEFUL

Purdue Professor Believes Amelia Earhart Lives.

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Dr. Edward C. Elliot, of Purdue university, has presented to the World Center of Women's Archives, Inc., the maps, log-book notes, weather reports and other data compiled by Amelia Earhart on her disastrous, attempted around-the-world flight.

"I have the feeling that Miss Earhart is still alive," Dr. Elliot said after presenting the documents to Inez Irwin, president of the organization, which will use them as a nucleus for a planned collection of data relating to the achievements of women throughout the ages.

"I feel that somewhere in the waste places of the Pacific there is Amelia Earhart," he added, "and I ask you to join with me in the hope that she will be back some day to look at these documents that we place in the Archives as testimony of her historic achievements."

SCIENTIST TOPIC

Atomic Force to Be Discussed in Lesson-Sermon Tomorrow.

"Is the Universe, Including Man, Evolved by Atomic Force?" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in Church of Christ, Scientist, Sunday.

The Golden Text is: "Thou, O Lord, shalt endure for ever; and thy remembrance unto all generations. Of old hast thou laid the foundation of the earth: and the heavens are the work of thy hands" (Psalms 102:12,25.)

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "For, lo, he that formeth the mountains, and createth the wind and declareth unto man what is his thought, that maketh the morning darkness, and treadeth upon the high places of the earth, The Lord, The God of hosts, is his name" (Amos 4: 13.)

FARM AGENT MISSING

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 18, 1937.

Drive carefully tomorrow—the Christmas spirit suggests it and your own safety demands it.

Cheer up—even if you haven't read the crop control bill you probably know as much about it as anyone else.

Now would be a fine time to give your good resolutions a first reading, so as to put them in effect by the first of the year.

For Better Protection.

ONE of the Chamber of Commerce "objectives" for Mansfield in 1938 which should be moved toward with sufficient seriousness to insure accomplishment, has to do with the city's need for better fire and police protection.

Referring particularly at this time to present inadequate protection against fire, and consequent high insurance rates, Mansfield's residential growth to the south and west makes it especially urgent that the long-talked-about new fire station for this section of the city be erected and put in operation as quickly as possible.

While shortage of funds may justify deferring some needed improvements such an excuse does not serve in the matter of providing adequate protection against fires.

Determination of the Chamber of Commerce to make a "vigorous effort" to obtain better fire and police protection for the people of Mansfield deserves very general support.

The Book That Sells Best.

WIDESPREAD observance of International Bible Sunday brings to mind that despite all competition, the Bible continues as the "best seller" among books.

With its translations extending into more than eight hundred tongues and its annual distribution mounting into millions of copies, the Bible has no rivals as the world's universal book, playing a fixed part in the lives of mankind in all civilized countries.

As one writer says, it contains "more true sublimity, more exquisite beauty, more pure morality, more important history and finer strains of poetry and eloquence than can be collected from all other books, in whatever age or language they may have been written."

Apologize for Mae West Radio Skit.

LAST Sunday night's unfortunate radio incident, in which Mae West was permitted on the air in one of her characteristically obnoxious skits, may have the good effect of bringing closer scrutiny of so-called radio "talent" hereafter.

Extent of the resentment of listeners to the West sort of entertainment over the radio was evidenced by the pile-up of protests that flooded the agency responsible for the Garden of Eden love scene portrayed in typical Mae West mannerism.

It is interesting to note that the company admits "It was a mistake and we can assure the public at large that the same mistake will not be made again."

The NBC also expressed regret and promised the public "the type of wholesome entertainment which it wants, and which it has every right to expect."

Mae West has made few appearances on the radio—but those few have obviously been too many.

O. S. U. Students Ask Mile Dry Zone.

AN EFFORT is being made by the student senate of Ohio State university to prohibit the sale of liquor-by-the-drink within a one-mile radius of the campus.

In a petition addressed to Governor Davey the student senate says: " . . . the night clubs pay little or no attention to the statutory provision prohibiting the sale of liquor to persons under 21 years of age. To do so would seriously impair the volume of their business since more than 50 per cent of the students at State are under age."

Just why the students at Ohio State university should be accorded protection that is denied other young people of Ohio is not made clear. Nor is it explained how the one-mile restriction would be any great help, as modern transportation methods provide ready means for youngsters to reach even more distant liquor spots.

Solution of Ohio's liquor problem involves much greater difficulties than merely putting the supply a mile away from children.

What the Japanese Fear.

WHY are the Japanese government and people trying so hard just now to reassure the American people and placate the United States government? It can hardly be from fear of war. Well-informed Japanese know that peace sentiment is very strong in this country.

Trade is another thing. In that respect our people have been showing their resentment against Japanese militarism ever since the invasion of China. Several organized boycotts have been in progress, some directed against silk and others against Japanese products in general. Our government of course has taken no part in these.

The movement has strengthened greatly since the bombing of the American ships in the Yangtse river.

Back to the Buffalo.

THE BISON and the American Indian are both increasing in numbers. In Buffalo National park, Alberta, protected bison herds have become so large that the government is having many of the animals shot. At present there is no such problem about the Indian population although, if it keeps on growing, the reservations may have to be enlarged or the Indians allowed to live elsewhere.

When Columbus discovered the New World the buffalo and the Indian held undisputed sway over North America. The buffalo was one of the principal means of support for the Indian, furnishing him meat and hides, which meant food, clothing and shelter. By the end of the nineteenth century the herds were down to a thousand or less. The Indians, too, seemed to be a vanishing people.

An imaginative person wonders whether some day in the distant future this continent will again be a wilderness peopled by savages and roaming wild beasts.

McIntyre's New York Day by Day

THIS column is being scribbled on a pad during a sleeper jump from Chicago. One of those hobble-dehoy skip-jack things to fit in with the lurches of the train. I'm propped up against mountainous pillows and out the window whirls a shadowy world of arabesques.

Nothing is more stimulating to me than the clickety-clack of train wheels in the night. And I know no other who relishes the aroma of train smoke. There is zest, too, in gliding under the shed of a depot in a strange city, hesitating a moment and roaring on.

Something marks the railroad and depot employes. They seem to live always on the brink of adventure. I've even envied the lonely station master hunched over his telegraph instrument as we flashed by some isolated out-post. His very next moment may be packed with drama.

Another tingle for me on a train journey is the lighted diner at the evening meal. All of us strain not to appear self conscious as we study one another covertly between bites. Generally we can spot the newly-weds. Their offhand casualness is entirely too studied.

One thing that always tastes better on trains and usually spangles every diner menu is those little stuffed pickled dinguses impaled on toothpicks, called gherkins. Gustatory memories: The grilled pompano on the New Orleans specials. The mountain trout in the high country of Colorado. The peaches in cream in Georgia and the Carolinas during the season. And the wilted lettuce salad with Gruyere on the boat trains to Paris.

George Ade in one of his parodies stopped many from calling Pullman porters George. My tag is Doc. To me the porter can make or ruin a trip. Most of us are fretful journeying and count much on the little gestures—the extra pillow, the prompt serving of table water and the equally prompt making up of berth. I employ the traveled Bruno Lessing's method with waiters in tipping porters. And it should be the credo of all travelers. Bum service, no tip. Fair service, fair tip. Excellent service, excellent fee. So long as tipping is regarded as one of the necessary evils it can be met best with that sort of team-work.

In the little green hammock strung across the window is a mystery story I picked up in the La Salle street station for the trip to New York. I bought it solely on account of its garish jacket. One—at least this one—wants blood and thunder literature on a night train ride. This has a dripping dagger slant-wise across the page. Filligreed in the background a horse-drawn Victoria leaving the brilliantly lit marquee of a night club. The face of a beautiful woman in decolette gown shows through the oval side window, a Maxine Elliott face glancing back in terror. There seems to be gobs of blood on the moon and I'll be knee deep in intrigue as we rush through the night.

Also in the green hammock is a shiny red apple, a shaker of salt and a bottle of charged water. Oddly, I like charged water on trains only, just as I enjoy duck on ocean liners only. The majority of stops I know tonight by a mere look out the window, having made the jaunt so often. John Cuneo, the printing tycoon in Chicago, has made so many of these trips he can without looking up, day or night, tell exactly where the train is and whether or not it's on time.

They were talking in the smoker after dinner about a certain person without apparent qualifications being chosen for a high position in the political world. One prosperous looking Chicagoan observed. "How frequently such positions seem to be filled by the eenie, meenie, minie, moe method." It reminded him of the church choir in which he sang when a boy. The voices were all about the same, but the biggest boy was assigned to the bass, the littlest to the tenor, while the prettiest girl, always sang soprano and the less glamorous sister got the alto role. There are a lot of inefficient people thus "moed" into jobs, he thought. Indeed I feel rather "eenie" myself at times.

We have never heard anyone who could shout "'Board" with that quick and piercing up-take like a conductor. It is one of the cheerios of railroading.

Wage-Hour Bill Complicated By Varying Views

—By LESLIE EICHEL

ORGANIZED labor desires it known that it is not opposed to wages and hours legislation, but the KIND of bill that congress has concocted. It, in fact, suits neither side.

Representative Lawrence J. Connery of Massachusetts, brother of the late Congressman William P. Connery, who drafted the bill, stated the view of labor when he requested that his brother's name be removed from the bill as no longer representing his ideals. The measure has been subjected to 125 amendments since its introduction, and now is entirely rewritten.

The bill is quite different from what President Roosevelt proposed in a message last May. The president then suggested that congress set certain labor standards as to minimum hours, maximum hours and the elimination of child labor. The minimum wages were conceived at 40 cents an hour and the hours' maximum was conceived at 40.

As the measure stands, there is to be no law for rudimentary standards. Instead, a board in the labor department—not even a board with the independent power of the national labor relations board—will administer a law which virtually makes the intended minimums the possible maximums. And, even at that, it leaves out the most poorly paid groups of workers—in the seasonal industries. Actually, in the end, comparatively few workers are included.

And for those few, organized labor believes that it may be stepping into a trap. The administrators, if and when the bill is passed, may gradually depress labor below 40 cents an hour and lengthen the working week instead of shortening it—according to labor's view.

On the other hand, industry does not like the bill, although it may put labor into a strait-jacket; industry opposes any further government "interference". It prefers to fight it out, as in the past.

BLACK

Conservative southerners in congress are just as pleased that Justice Black no longer is a senator. He was a fighter for the Roosevelt type of wage-hour bill. He is not there now to make a fight.

BUSINESS

How's business to be in 1938? Well, we've read a score of opinions, here and abroad. No three agree.

Here's an opinion from Roger Babson's organization:

"Business in the first quarter of 1938 will be slow. We expect a pickup to have begun by the second quarter and feel that the final half of 1938 should bring a very sharp improvement. The average for the year should be about equal to the 1937 level."

RAILS

A railroad freight rate increase will hit the small manufacturer and the farmer seriously. It will prove dangerously deflationary. These are not the words of a radical, but the words of a Wall street commentator.

The railroads are in financial trouble not because their rates are too low. They are in trouble because of their watered capitalization. That is the New Deal view. Rail manipulators of half a century ago milked the properties, and left them with the burden of tens of millions in securities that ought to have no basic value. Some persons say that this huge bogged-down debt was on equipment long ago obsolete. But much of it was for nothing, for thin air, figures disclosed in the investigation of senate committee for interstate commerce show.

What can be done? A proposal has been made in New York to exchange bonds for common stock—let everybody take a chance as a common stockholder.

President Roosevelt has declared for continued private ownership. But if the men dominating the railroads continue to demand their pound of flesh from a weakening body economic, it may be forced by economic pressure to take the rail lines and mercilessly squeeze out the water and end uneconomic competition. The rails are one industry in which competition (with each other) spells doom. (Economists say there are other industries, too.)

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Tuesday, Dec. 18, 1917.

Home of John Miller, 282 East Fourth street, was damaged by early morning fire.

Daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Philip Schmutzler, 299 South Main street.

Bob-sled load of young people went to country home of Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Hecht, east of city.

D. O. Meese and R. F. Miller, newly elected members of school board, attended board session.

Hugh Hoffer was transferred to aviation corps and sent to San Antonio, Tex., for training.

Twenty Years Ago Tomorrow

Wednesday, Dec. 19, 1917.

John W. Byrnes became leader of First Christian church choir.

H. T. Manner and family presented large service flag to South Main street Evangelical church.

Louis Ott, jr., West Third street, was raising Belgian hares. Somebody stole four of them.

Christmas tree was placed on St. Luke's point, corner Marion avenue and Park avenue west.

Dr. and Mrs. J. H. West went to Marietta to spend the holidays.

William Boals was appointed by Safety Director Hughes to position on police force.

FIVE YEARS AGO TODAY

Sunday, Dec. 18, 1932.

Choir of 80 presented cantata "Our Redeemer's Birth" at Shelby High school auditorium.

Charles Brown, jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. Charles G. Brown, arrived home from Denison university, to spend the holidays.

Red Grange caught a forward pass to score touchdown that gave Chicago Bears world's professional football championship, Bears defeating Portsmouth, O., Spartans, 9-0. It was Grange's last appearance as football player.

Singers from many of city's choirs joined to present oratorio, "The Manger Throne," at First Congregational church.

Home of Vaughn Bates, West Fourth street, was slightly damaged by fire.

Five Years Ago Tomorrow

Monday, Dec. 19, 1932.

Daughter was born to Dr. and Mrs. C. H. Bell in General hospital.

Mrs. Alan Griffin directed presentation of Dickens' "Christmas Carol" by Blue Tri club members as their Christmas program.

Glenn S. Erdenberger was elected president of Hermit club.

Mrs. Isa Boughton was installed as matron of Ruth chapter, Order of Eastern Star.

Twenty children of Sunshine school were entertained at annual Christmas party by Rotary club at dinner at Mansfield-Leland hotel. Santa Claus distributed gifts.

TODAY IS—

Saturday, Dec. 18; Ember day. Statehood day in New Jersey—150th anniversary of its ratification of the Constitution, giving it the third star in the flag.

Listen, World!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON—

The Spirit of Christmas.

HEAVY weather at the Joneses! Dad's hiding out, down in the office—

Mom's in bed with a sick headache—

The cook's on a rampage—

And Big Sister's about ready for a nervous break-down—

All because Christmas is almost here...and, as usual, the shopping and presents are late.

Sounds familiar, doesn't it? Dollars to doughnuts, you pass through the same thing yourself every year. So—to my shame—do I.

But I didn't always. And, out of that penniless time, I treasure one of the loveliest memories of my life.

Flat busted—the little lad and I. Stranded in a mining camp in the Sierras...a tumble-down shack at the turn of the trail... with a storm breaking great guns.

Christmas Eve. Tea, beans and a scrap of salt pork on the shelves—that was all. A pint size stove that wouldn't draw...and a small, ragged stocking hanging beside the leaking chimney... How his little white face had shone as he hung it on the nail!

Nearly six feet I stood, in heavy hob-nailed boots and jeans, bent for so long over mining pick and barrow that I'd nearly forgotten a woman could live any other life. Yet my heart went on the floor at the sight of that little sock—

My God, wasn't there—anything?

Couldn't I manage—somehow?

JESUS...JESUS...!

Black as the pit outside...no human sight or sound. Only the crash of the rain, hurling its solid weight...and the wolf-wild yell of the wind, clawing the broken panes.

"But he'll come, Muz—won't he?" Little face longing. Little hand clutching.

(Oh, Jesus in heaven—help!)

C-R-A-S-H! It was growing worse. B-A-N-G! There went the old shed wall. Well, at least it meant a bit of fire...even if we couldn't eat. S-W-I-S-H! Under the door it came...oozing black flood. Run for the bucket, darling...get Muz a sack and a pan—W-O-O-E-E-E-E-E!! Will the old roof hold—?

But—what's that? A knock? Can't be. It's just the storm. No one out on a night like this. No one near enough, at any rate, who cares. Just the storm.... But no! There it is again. Shall we risk it...open the door... let in the storm? Well—might as well, take a chance.

Shoulder braced against the rickety wood...hand braced on the flimsy knob...open an inch ...then another.

And then—

We saw!

Huddled about the door.... straggling into the night...clusters of lantern lights! And beneath each light a face—calling us by name. And beneath each face, two hands—holding a covered dish!

They'd come! Through the night and the storm they'd come ...from the cabins and dugouts and shacks....mountain folk, with their burden of love—sharing their Christmas cheer!

So long since I saw them last. They've gone...and the little tad, too. And I'm left here—remembering. But of all that life ever held...or that riches or fame ever brought...there's no memory sweeter than that—

When I saw what love could give—

And learned what Christmas could mean.

Timely Editorial

Action by Brewers.

An encouraging step toward the better control of alcohol has recently been taken by the United Brewers' Industrial Foundation which, at its first annual convention, adopted a code of practice binding its members, who comprise a majority of brewers in this nation, to conduct their business in conformity with the law, promote moderation and sobriety, give full support to regulating authorities and to do what lies in their power to discourage disregard for law or common-sense practice among the many retail outlets.

The brewers' attitude is to be commended. Cafes and barrooms which handle not only beer but stronger drinks could perform a service both to themselves and to the public by following the lead of the brewers, and so minimize the criticism of intoxicants which rightly becomes loudly articulate when laws are ignored or winked at.—Columbus Dispatch.

Everyday Poems

—By GEORGE ELLISTON

Five-Year Plan.

Making over life takes time;
A moment or a day
Is not nearly long enough,
It's not done that way.

If your lot unhappy is
And you truly would
Change it, map a chartered course,
Give the time you should.

To your plan, as nations do.
Make it a set sum,
Five or ten years, in that space
See how near you'll come
To the goal. Approach it you
Must, you cannot fail;
Carefully laid plans in time,
With hard work, prevail.

What One Man Thinks

—By DAVID GIBSON

"Resist not evil;" for it will destroy itself.

What we do not harbor in thought will not harm us.

Future practice and judgment of the law will involve a study to a knowledge of political economy.

As yet, there are not two cars in every garage, but there is a bath room in nearly every house and apartment, and the tub is no longer used for a fish aquarium or coal bin.

Still more evidence that we are the missing link—the human race hasn't got here yet: The sale of astrology magazines is on the high increase—used to play the races and stock market.

Behavior.

ERNEST A. HOOTON, professor of anthropology, Harvard university, says:

"We must improve man before we can perfect his institutions and make him behave."

The reason too many of us, as individuals, do not behave, is economic pressure due to the discordant state of some of our institutions, particularly the business system, by which we all supply our wants and needs.

The reason for the discordant state of this particular institution is the social-economic ignorance of those who comprise it, and through the failure of institutions of higher learning, like Harvard, to teach it.

We can not expect certain individuals to behave under the economic pressure created by a philosophy of want, scarcity, privation, poverty; and particularly when the many, too many, observe an over-supply of all that they lack in possession of the few, and when they know that there is still plenty where the few got their abundance, and even though they are willing to work for it—earn it.

The other day I observed a huge dog shut in in a fine, new car parked along a main street and all the windows tightly closed.

Through the windows, the dog evidently observed the relative freedom going on outside; in which it was not participating; it may have become hungry, thirsty and tired of breathing its own breath in the small, restricted confines of that car.

Anyhow, the dog began to paw the glass, and finding this action fruitless, it undertook to dig out through the upholsterv of the seats.

The police finally came and evidently took the car and dog to the pound.

True, this was only a dog, but it was a living, breathing creature with certain natural instincts for air, water, food and reasonable freedom of movement.

And being deprived of these, why, the dog misbehaved!

The dog's master, in the denial of the instinctive rights of his pet, will pay the bill for the repair of a badly damaged car.

These young men and women, who, in these periodical recurrences of business depressions, are let out of their places of work by the wholesale!

They are of good families, education and general character—willing to work in their desire to make a place for themselves in life—but there is no work.

These wholesale dismissals may be no fault of the employer—a factory without orders is as economically discordant as an individual man or woman out of work.

But these wholesale dismissals are making Communists faster than the agitators on the platforms of their forums—and to rash, ignorant action—the same as that dog trying to dig out through the upholstery of the car.

Enough of our business and political leaders are graduates of institutions of higher learning, and the fault lies in the failure of these to teach the simple, natural laws that relate to distribution of the fruits of labor.

That, according to natural law, there are two classifications of property rather than just one, that of possession, and as defined by the sheep-bound volumes.

One classification of property is that created by labor and management, the second is with no effort other than the scratch of pens in law offices.

We, as individuals, have been kept in ignorance too long by colleges and universities, by the influence of Dead Men's Hands, up out of their graves—predatory contributors to their endowment funds—to the denial of economic truth.

"Woe unto them that join house to house, that lay field to field, until there is no place, that they may be placed alone in the midst of the earth!"

Observations.

MARK TWAIN tells of a boarding house; when at the table he turned to talk to the fellow at his left, the fellow at his right drank the umbrella juice out of his dish of prunes.

The younger generation will not get this humor; for it was of the days of cheap cotton umbrellas and when all dyes were not fast.

Since the common application of the small motor, generator and storage batteries, there have been numerous, periodical and costly attempts to economically store the power of the wind and by large and scientifically constructed windmills.

This was almost a mania with the late A. I. Root, founder of the bee-keeping supply industry, Medina, O. For years he maintained a large experimental station in Florida, but without economic results.

The late Charles F. Brush, inventor of the arc electric light and storage battery, at one time conducted a long series of experiments in the back yard of his Cleveland home, in an effort to harness wind-power.

The late James J. Hill, who pioneered railroads through the northwest, and with long distances between cities and division points, undertook to supply his locomotives with water pumped from wells by windmills, which were soon replaced by steam engines.

Norway, Sweden and Denmark once sent a group of engineers to America to review all these experiments and make their own time studies in power generated by wind.

The long report of these men to their home governments could be summed up by saying that the natural supply of wind was never as much as believed by the experimenters in this source of power.

There are still windmills in Holland used for grinding grain, but for the most part their burr stones are now powered by gas engines and their towers and sails maintained as scenery for the benefit of tourists.

HERE is an illustration of the money-worth of an idea, which cost nothing in itself and little to apply:

In 1894, John Berteman, a retail florist, Indianapolis, began advertising flowers delivered in a day to any city in the United States. He did this by telegraphing dealers in the towns of the delivery address.

Very soon this was organized into a national service with a telegraph code, co-operative advertising and a clearing house in Detroit for remittances.

It has been estimated that this original idea of John Berteman's, within the last decade, has added more than two million dollars annually to the retail florists' sales in the United States.

9 ARRAIGNED ON INDICTMENTS IN BUCYRUS COURT

6 Plead Guilty, 3 Others Maintain Innocence; Once Sentenced to Pen.

BUCYRUS—Six of the 12 persons indicted by the September grand jury this week entered pleas of guilty and three pleaded not guilty at their arraignments before Judge C. H. Ahl Friday. Hearings for three others were delayed until a later date.

William Mantz Curley, alias S. E. Hayes, indicted on four counts of forgery, was sentenced to the Ohio penitentiary for an indefinite term on each court, which will be a minimum of four years. He pleaded guilty. Curley was suspected of passing forged checks in more than 40 Ohio cities, authorities said.

Imposition of sentence was deferred on James Sheldon who pleaded guilty to a charge of forgery on three counts.

Gets 5 Days.

Carl E. Fravel pleaded guilty ito a charge of larceny and was sentenced to five days in county jail and pay court costs. Fravel was charged with the theft of clothing and other articles from a railroad caboose here.

Edwin Casebeer, 34, Bucyrus, was ordered to report to the court each month for one year and pay court costs. Casebeer pleaded guilty to a charge of embezzlement of 160 cases of beer from the R. A. Jolly company, for whom he was employed. Gerald Haefer indicted on the same charge was not given a hearing Friday. His case will be heard Monday.

Jerome Fisher, Bucyrus, indicted secretly on a charge of forgery, two counts, will also be given a hearing Monday.

Hearing was also deferred in the case of Charles Spaid of Galion, indicted for failure to send child to school.

Three persons, Paul Stover, Frank Barlion and Richard Gubernath, all indicted on charges of neglect of minor children pleaded not guilty. Hearing for Stover was set for Jan. 11; Barlion, Jan. 4 and Gubernath, Jan. 7. Bond was fixed at $500 for each.

Greenwich

CROWD ATTENDS MEET

The Greenwich Grange had an unusually large attendance at the regular meeting Tuesday night. Following the business session a group of young people furnished a part of the program which with the music, readings and games made a complete evening.

The Grange also voted to have a Christmas exchange at the next meeting Dec. 28. After the meeting refreshments were served.

TO GIVE 'TREATS'

Santa Claus has made arrangements for a treat at the Community Christmas tree on West Main street at 8 p. m. Friday, Dec. 24. Every little boy and girl in the community is invited to be there.

Christmas carols will be sung around the tree. Should the weather be inclement, the children will be taken to the high school building for the festivities.

CLUB PLANS PARTY

The Dramatic club will have a party Wednesday night at the high school auditorium. Games, dancing and Christmas exchange will be the diversions of the evening.

the taxpayers of the community for the next two years.

Styert, who served as council president in the Lantz administration, will replace on Jan. 1 Service-Safety Director Philip Wolfe. In addition to two terms as council president, Styert also has been, during the past 20 years, a councilman-at-large for a number of terms. Until recently he had operated a meat market on Newman street, but disposed of that business about two weeks ago. Styert is married and resides at 269 Newman street.

Returns to Former Post.

Herlihy will return to a job he held for most of 1935. He was appointed in the last year of Lantz's administration to take the place of Harry O'Brien, who resigned. On Jan. 1 he will take over the post held for the past two years by Arthur C. McMullen.

Herlihy is a lifelong resident of Mansfield and was active in Hunter's campaign for election last fall. He is considered an expert on pumps and similar mechanisms, having served for many years as supervisor, master mechanic and foreman with Mansfield firms engaged in the manufacture of such equipment. Married and the father of two sons, Herlihy lives at 37 West Fifth street.

Lingafelter's appointment to the post of water department secretary returns him to the same department in which he was employed under Lantz, but promoted to a more important position When he left the department in 1935, he was a bookkeeper. He will return as secretary, taking the place of Ralph A. Hughes. Lingafelter resigned near the close of his term to enter the employ of the state and has been a bookkeeper in the state liquor store at Shelby. His home is at 6 Glenwood Heights.

Rahm, also a Lantz appointee, goes back to the same job he had until the present Republican administration went into office—that of park superintendent. He takes the place of H. K. Boughton, the second McFarland appointee to the post. Edwin D. Ford, the first McFarland appointee, died during his term. Rahm lives at 187 South Adams street.

Styert will receive an annual salary of $3,000 in his new position. Herlihy's post pays $2,100 as does Lingafelter's, and Rahm will receive an annual salary of $1,800.

PLAN PROGRAMS FOR CHILDREN

SHELBY — Special Christmas programs are planned Sunday at the First Methodist and Presbyterian churches. The annual children's party will be held at the First Methodist church Sunday morning. The children of the First Presbyterian church will be entertained at 4 p. m. Sunday.

Other parties planned for next week will include a special Christmas program for children of the First Evangelical and Reformed church Thursday evening. On December 26, the First Church of Christ will hold its children's party.

whose failing left eye had a sound cornea. Other patients looked upon Amos as a grumpy old man, and left him alone. But Chabina talked to him by the hour, and Amos was grateful.

One day Amos heard the youth's sight could be saved only by the transplantation of the cornea disc. He summoned the surgeon and said:

"Frank's been mighty good to me. If my eye will do him any good, he's welcome to it. I'm an old man and won't be needing it much longer."

The surgeon, who had performed three similar operations successfully, said that the cornea disc from the old man's eye had knit soundly with the youth's, but that he could not predict the final outcome.

Traveled 60,000 Miles On Bicycle, Bucyrian Claims

BUCYRUS—Fifty years in the bicycle repair business, during which time he has pedaled 60,000 miles, is the record of J. E. Swank, local bicycle repairman and dealer, who still rides his bike to his shop each day.

Forty miles on his bicycle without leaving the seat was the record trip of Swank who made a trip from Covington, O., to Degraff, when roads were not what they are today, according to Swank.

Swank estimated his mileage for the 50 years on his daily trips to and from his home to his shop in addition to other business trips and errands. He has estimated that he still rides 1,400 miles a year.

The afternoon was spent with cards and an exchange of gifts after which the hostess took her guests to the home of Mrs. S. E. Peppard on Seltzer street for the serving of a 6 o'clock dinner. Appointments of the season were used in the table decolations.

CURRENT NEWS CLUB OF GALION HOLDS 'GUEST NIGHT' MEETING

GALION—Decorations of holly, Christmas trees, and cut flowers made an attractive setting Friday night at First Presbyterian church for the "guest evening" of the Current News club, Galion's oldest literary group.

After a brief welcome by the club president, the meeting was turned over to Mrs. J. F. Bemiller who had charge of both the program and other arrangements for the affair. Naomi Jane Cook entertained with piano numbers. Dramatic pupils of Juanita Plack presented a play, "T'was Christmas Eve," a fairy tale depicting the spirit of Christmas in a Colonial Virginia setting. The place was announced by Phyllis Ann Thomas of Crestline, and those taking part were Joan Hoekstra, Carol Lemley, Annabelle Chapman, Phyllis Eckstein, Jane Wagner, June Morkel, Violet Dickhart, Lila Goodman, Jean Cowl and Winona Lehman The program was brought to a close with group singing of Christmas carols.

The guests were then invited to a beautifully decorated table for a buffet lunch White tapers, crystal and silver, evergreens and colored bulbs, were arranged attractively upon the table.

Entire arrangements of decorations and refreshments were in charge of the Co-Workers class of the church, with Mrs. Fred Essex as chairman.

The Builders' class of Church of Christ entertained at the church Friday night in honor of the recently elected officers of the church and Sunday school. A dinner was followed with speeches, music and readings. Mabie Bennett, president of the class, was toastmistress. She and the secretary, Mrs. Fred Woodbury, and the teacher, Mrs. W. G. Kiddey, were in charge of arrangements.

* * *

The exchange of Christmas gifts provided much amusement for the number of other clubs and organizations meeting in Galion Friday night.

The Pythian Sisters' Sewing Circle met for a banquet and social hours at the United Brethren church.

Mrs. Carl Hershner and Mrs. Robert Fink were joint hostesses to their club for a Christmas dinner party at McGaughy's, where the guests remained for bridge and social hours.

Ashland College Students Act as Orphans' 'Santa'

ASHLAND—"And a Little Child Shall Lead Them" is more than a myth at Ashland college this year. With bags of dolls, toy trains, popcorn, candy, and oranges, enthusiastic students journeyed to the Ashland County Children's home for a Christmas party of games, Christmas singing, and even a visit from old Santa Claus himself.

The Y. M C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. of the college combined to give the orphans a bit of their own excess Christmas cheer and fun. For several weeks before the festive party, the girls worked diligently dressing the dolls, and repairing broken toys The boys helped prepare holiday refreshments and aided in repairing broken toys.

On Thursday immediately following a varsity basketball game, the Y. M. and Y. W. again combined forces to bring cheer to the sick, the shut-ins, and others of the city. The two organizations went from house to house singing Christmas carols.

increased 1.40 mills to make a total of 21.40 mills, the second highest in the county.

Reductions are shown in the corporation rates in Shiloh, Plymouth and Butler, while the Lucas rate remains the same at 14.80 mills. The rate at Shiloh is 18.80, a two-tenths mill cut, and at Butler the 15.80 figure also represents a two-tenths mill reduction. A 14.80 mill rate at Plymouth is eight-tenths mill less than in 1936.

The Shelby corporation rate is 16.40 mills, the same as last year. The city's school levy, however, is up two-tenths mill to 12.65.

In the newly-formed Union rural school district, comprising Franklin and Weller townships, a rate of 12.60 mills has been set by the tax commission.

Sharon township, the only district in the county last year, which had no school levy, will have a 1.40 mill school rate under the new set-up. The township's total rate will jump from four mills last year to 5.80 mills. It is still the lowest in the county, however.

Horizontal Lines.

Horizontal treatments are being used in Paris. A navy dress is banded in green and mauve—an Alix model; Vionnet shows coats that are seamed in wide crosswise bands; straight coats have groups of tucks suggesting the crosswise idea. Maggy Rouff gathers the skirts of her evening dresses in horizontal rows, suggesting a wide ribbon treatment.

USE YARDSTICK

If you are planning new draperies for curtains, it is best to use a yardstick to measure with. Tape measures are likely to stretch, and half an inch too short or too long will ruin the decorative effect at your windows.

Purple and violet shades are favorite colors for evening.

HAVE ANNUAL DINNER.

The Auxiliary to Firemen's Local met at the home of Mrs. Leo Saltzgaber for the annual dinner and Christmas exchange recently. Mrs. J. W. Lowman, Mrs. E. E. Beal, Mrs. M. Earl Saltzgaber, and Miss Laura Brink were guests. Following the business session bingo was played with Mrs. J. R. Shively, Mrs. Carl Maul the prize winners. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Charles Seeburger, South Main street, Jan. 20.

HANDY OUTFIT

An exotic silk print tuck-in blouse and pencil slim skirt of white broadcloth were combined for a dance ensemble at Palm Springs, Cal. A belt made of simulated conch shells with turquoise motifs circled the waist. Such costumes are easy for the traveler to pack, and so are practical for travel, cruise and resort wardrobes.

MOLASSES SPICE CAKE

One cup brown sugar, one-half cup molasses, one-half cup lard, two eggs, one scant cup hot water, one teaspoon cinnamon, two and one-half cups flour, a little salt. Stir well and bake in moderate oven.

Gold and Black

The popular combination of black and gold is used by Sally Eilers, moving picture actress, in a street dress of black Rusticana crepe. Gold kid straps and buckles accent the high neckline and slender waist. A softly draped bodice and smartly flared skirt are notable fashion points.

FRIENDS ANNOUNCE COMING MARRIAGES

Miss Helen Angelo Will Be Bride of Jan. 23—Miss Mary Glorioso to Wed on Christmas Day.

APPROACHING marriages of two Mansfield girls were announced recently at miscellaneous showers given for them by friends. Notice was received this morning of the coming marriage of Miss Helen Angelo, 78 McPherson street, to Samuel Branoff, Detroit, Mich. The ceremony will be read Jan. 23.

At the party given by Mrs. Frank E. Brurato, Miss Madaline Karkalik and Miss Mary Angelo, bunco was played at three tables. Prizes were awarded to Mrs. George Simoneff, Miss Olga Phillips and Miss Thomasine Letizia.

An out-of-town guest here for the affair was Miss Olga Phillips, Cleveland. Mrs. Andy Angelo will entertain for Miss Angelo at another shower.

Announcement was made at a party given recently by Miss Grace Parry, 229 North Adam street, of the engagement of Miss Mary G. Glorioso, 276 Wayne street, daughter of Samuel Glorioso, 235 North Diamond street, to Robert C. Dinger, 274 Wayne street. The ceremony will be read by Rev. Paul H. Saleste, pastor of St. John's Evangelical church, at 10:30 a. m. Christmas day.

Decorations for the miscellaneous shower and bingo party were tiny Christmas trees and tall lighted tapers. Places were marked with favors and a miniature bridal couple centered the table.

Prizes were awarded to Miss Adeline Colango, Miss Frances Sperro and Mrs. Francis Hardest. Later the prizes, along with the shower gifts, were presented to the bride-elect.

Neighborhood Bible Club Gives Program

Members of the Neighborhood Bible club met yesterday with Mrs. Harold Garrison, Western avenue, as hostess. Mrs. C. H. Henkel led the Christmas devotions and Mrs. Carl Walker presented a paper and sang a solo.

Mrs. Garrison gave a Christmas story and then tea was served with Mrs. D. W. Cummings pouring. Mrs. R. V. Cairns was a guest of the club. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Harry Longsdorf, West Park drive, Jan. 7.

New Colors.

A word as to colors. Brown is beginning to sell, say the stores, for dresses as well as coats, suits, hats, shoes and gloves. Brown is benng chosen in silks, wools and in linens for the south. A new red is, however, a rival. We have had dabonnet and wine, now we have a new shade of brownish wine red called "burnt wine" or "old port."

As to other colors, blues are liked—"Neon blue," Chinese blue, which has a hint of green. They are used in prints as well as plain colors.

WHITE CAPE

A full length white wool evening cape is the dramatic model shown by one shop.

Miss Thull Guest At Dessert Party

A miscellaneous shower and dessert bridge at the Susie Janis home Thursday was the second party in a long series for Miss Frances Thull who on New Year's day becomes the bride of Edward B. Eagan of Cleveland.

Mrs. P. L. Cairns was hostess to 20 guests for the affair. Covers were laid at one long table which was unusually lovely in silver and blue. The centerpiece was blue carnations and silver leaves while at each end of the table were blue tapers in three branch silver candelabra. Around the candleabra were entwined masses of blue and silver individual corsages for each guest, with ribbons running to each place.

After dessert bridge was played at five tables and score prizes were won by Mrs. Alyce Vahar, Miss Thull, Mrs. Louise Reese and Mrs. Jack Slaiz. All of them were presented to the bride-elect. The hostess gave her an electrical gift.

At the shower she received a number of attractive gifts, the ensemble making a complete kitchen set of Fiesta ware.

Among the parties planned for her next week are a breakfast tomorrow morning at the Janis home, with Mrs. V. E. Zimmerman and the Misses Mary and La Vera Wehinger as hostesses; a bridge Monday evening at Mrs. Shriver's tea room, with Mrs. Vahar, Miss Bernice Osborn and Mrs. D. A. Tucker presiding; and a dinner bridge at the Janis home, given by Mrs. V. E Jones, Miss Mae King and Miss Alice Meeting.
